Topping,2025-08-05 Modern practice in the 1980s was to involve parents increasingly in the education of their children and was supported by legislation. Particularly when children had special needs, parents required structured training and support to ensure they effectively sustained their vital role as educators at home. Many large scale programmes to provide this had been developed throughout the world at the time, for example Home Start, Portage, Home Visiting Projects and Paired Reading Projects. However, not all of these had been thoroughly evaluated and the existing literature was scattered and difficult to access. Some projects demonstrated spectacular results and high cost effectiveness while others proved more disappointing. Originally published in 1986, this book critically analyses over 600 international English language research reports on the effectiveness of parent training programmes. In addition, a detailed guide to the practicalities of planning projects is provided together with a comprehensive directory of useful resource materials. After an introductory overview, the evidence on the effects on child progress of parental involvement in school activities is reviewed, as is research on the impact of schemes of regular structured communication between home and school. Programmes designed to train parents to accelerate the development of their children at home are considered in the subsequent chapters, starting with ordinary children. Much of the book reviews projects targeted on children with some sort of special educational need, from children whose special needs stem from a widespread difficulty such as poverty or second language learning, systematically through to children whose needs stem from rarer and more severe issues. Each chapter has its own summary for ease of reader use, while an overall summary chapter points out best buys and directions for future developments. This volume will be of major interest to teachers, psychologists, social workers, community health personnel, community educationalists, researchers, many others working with parents and children, and to some parents themselves. This book is a re-issue, originally published in 1986. The language used is a reflection of its era and no offence is meant by the Publishers to any reader by this re-publication.

The Caring Teacher's Guide to Discipline Marilyn E. Gootman, 2001. A delight to read. The Learning Child Dorothy Cohen, 1988-04-12. Hailed as a classic in developmental psychology, The Learning Child is as relevant today as when it was first published in 1972, if not more so. Drawing on the findings of psychologists like Piaget and on the author's own experiences teaching child development at New York's Bank Street College, Cohen explores the crucial links between learning and the successive stages of childhood and shows parents and teachers how to turn a child's natural instinct for inquiry into a talent for learning that will last a lifetime If American parents will read and listen to Dr Cohen s sensible wise analysis of the way young children learn my faith in human beings will be restored It was refreshing and reassuring to read a book by someone who approaches childhood with love and profound wisdom Eda LeShan author of When Your Child Drives You Crazy Parents and Teachers National Congress of Parents and Teachers,1928 The Publishers Weekly ,1972 The Parent-Teacher Partnership Scott Mandel,2008 With the National PTA s Standard for School Family Community Partnership as a framework this guide offers advice for resolving common points of contention between parents and teachers such as the most productive use of a parent teacher conference the best at home environment for doing homework the helpfulness of parental rewards for classroom performance and a teacher s role in supporting a student with an at home crisis This solution manual draws from real world experiences of parents teachers and administrators to tackle issues of communication parenting skills classroom volunteering and mutual respect Early Childhood Update ,1996 The School News and Practical Educator ,1925
