Teachers and Teaching Tom Russell, Hugh Munby, 1992 The twelve chapters in this book each written by a prominent education researcher represent recent developments in teacher education in the UK USA Canada and Australia The collection develops important new meanings for reflection in the context of teaching and teacher education and special attention is given to reflection into action as developed in the work of Donald Schon Other areas dealt with include case studies narrative and action research Each contributor has extensive experience of teacher education that strives to empower individual teachers to take charge of their own professional development Reflective Practice in Action Thomas S. C. Farrell, 2003-11-20 Use 80 reflection breaks as individual discussion starters or as part of a comprehensive professional growth plan that is perfect for teachers at all levels An Educator's Guide to Teacher Reflection Barbara Larrivee, James M. Cooper, 2006 This guide explains the importance of developing the habit and skills of reflective practice in order to meet student needs and grow continuously as a professional teacher Reflective Teaching in Second Language Classrooms Jack C. Richards, Charles Lockhart, 1994-03-25 This text introduces teachers to techniques for exploring their own classroom experiences The paperback edition introduces teachers to techniques for exploring their own classroom experiences Numerous books deal with classroom observation and research but this is the first to offer a carefully structured approach to self observation and self evaluation Richards and Lockhart aim to develop a reflective approach to teaching one in which teachers collect data about their own teaching examine their attitudes beliefs and assumptions and use the information they obtain as a basis for critical reflection on teaching practices The approach is not linked to a particular method but rather can be applied to a variety of methodologies and teaching situations Each chapter includes questions and activities appropriate for group discussion or self study Teach, Reflect, Learn Pete Hall, Alisa Simeral, 2015-04-15 It's not the doing that matters it's the thinking about the doing said John Dewey As a teacher you work hard to make a positive difference in the lives of your students But this kind of progress doesn't happen overnight and it doesn't happen accidentally It's the result of intentionality planning effort and thought The difference between learning a skill and being able to implement it effectively resides in your capacity to engage in deep continuous thought about that skill In other words recognizing why you do something is often more important than knowing how to do it To help you deepen your thinking and reflect on your capacity as an educator Pete Hall and Alisa Simeral return to the Continuum of Self Reflection which they introduced to coaches and administrators in their best selling Building Teachers Capacity for Success and redesign its implementation so you can take charge of your own professional growth In these pages you'll find tools specifically made to enhance self reflection on professional practice including the Continuum of Self Reflection and the Reflective Cycle You'll be able to assess your current self reflective tendencies identify opportunities to reflect on your instruction and begin to forge a path toward continuous growth and educational excellence Teachers who Teach Teachers Tom Russell, Fred Korthagen, Fred A. J. Korthagen, 1995 Teachers Who Teach Teachers is a major contribution to an emerging literature in which teacher educators are beginning to explore the new challenges facing those who care about the quality of teaching in schools and in teacher education programmes In this volume the contributors consider the personal development of both new and experienced teacher educators illustrating just how strongly teacher educators are influenced by their visions and by the challenge to prove themselves in the university setting They look at ways in which teacher educators have acted to promote their own professional development and study their own practices including writing as a tool for reflection Finally the contributors take a broader look at the professional development of teacher educators and the challenge to all teacher educators to consider the tension between rigour and relevance

Conceptualising Reflection In Teacher Development James

Calderhead, Peter Gates, 2003-09-02 Reflection has become widely recognised as a crucial element in the professional growth of teachers Terms such as reflective teaching enquiry orientated teacher education teachers as researchers and reflective practitioner have become quite prolific in discussions of classroom practice and professional development It is frequently presumed that reflection is an intrinsically good and desirable aspect of teaching and teacher education and that teachers in becoming more reflective will in some sense be better teachers though such claims have been rarely subject to detailed scrutiny Each of the chapters in this book is concerned with exploring the concept of reflection and considering its contributions to teacher education The papers range across different stages of professional development some focusing in particular on pre service education others on in service or professional development generally Some of the papers are concerned with particular strategies for promoting reflection and how they might operate in a teacher education context others dwell more upon a theoretical appreciation of how reflection facilitates in the processes of professional development and how it relates to issues of quality in teacher education

Critical Reflection for Transformative Learning Katrina Liu, 2020-11-15 This book provides a research based guide to using ePortfolios to develop critically reflective teachers capable of transformative learning for educational equity. It begins with a conceptualization of critical reflection in teacher education then analyzes the social discourse of prospective teachers teaching practice through their ePortfolio reflections triangulated by classroom teaching observations and interviews. The results of the research show that prospective teachers' reflections are performative and do not typically trigger transformative learning in large part because of discrepancies in the structures of the ePortfolio, the goals of the teacher education program and the mentoring and supervisory practices. With this analysis in hand, the book turns to practical questions providing a transformative framework along with examples and tips for teacher educators to use the author's methods to understand and analyze prospective teachers' reflection and support their transformative learning.

Reflective Practice for Teachers Maura Sellars, 2013-12-16 The text provides powerful opportunities to challenge thinking and to encourage trainee teachers to articulate and justify their beliefs about the purposes of education, the nature of learning and the impact this has on their own developing practice in the classroom. Marnie Seymour, Senior Lecturer in Primary Education, University of Winchester. Through a variety of stimulus questions and a focus on what does this mean for you, this book encourages pre-service teachers to develop habits of reflection that will guide their achievement of an authentic teacher identity. Linley Cornish, Associate Professor, School of Education, University of New England, Australia. An essential aspect of teaching is being able to reflect on your own practice and analyse your professional actions and use this process to develop as a successful teacher. Reflective Practice for Teachers explores a range of key issues that you will need to engage with during your teacher preparation and early career in the classroom in order to deepen your understanding of teaching practice. Coverage includes: What does this mean for you? boxes in every chapter that directly relate educational theory to the classroom. The changing nature of teaching and the role of the teacher and the importance of making personal evidence based decisions. How contemporary issues such as technology, global perspectives and the importance of pedagogical practices can support effective teaching. Guidance on how to reflect on the richness of diversity in classrooms and the tensions and challenges that may result from differences. This is essential reading for teacher education students on university based and school based courses preparing to teach in primary and secondary education and early career teachers seeking to continue their professional learning. Maura Sellars is a lecturer in Education at The University of Newcastle, Australia.

Reflective

Practice for Educators Karen F. Osterman, Robert Kottkamp, 1993-01-17 This book provides specific strategies for facilitating reflective practice and is the first to provide a practical guide to professional development and school reform from this standpoint. The authors show how reflective practice provides powerful strategies to help professionals learn from their experiences, improve themselves, and thus improve schools and education. Applications in every area of professional development and school reform are presented.

Micro-Reflection on Classroom Communication Hansun Zhang Waring, Sarah Chepkirui Creider, 2020 Traditional concerns with classroom communication have centered on questions such as who talks more, whether the interaction is teacher centered or student centered, whether participation is restricted to a few or available to all, what kinds of questions teachers ask, and what kinds of feedback they give. These indicators provide a simple and useful way of capturing classroom communication in distributional and categorical terms. Less attention has been devoted to observing and understanding the quality of this communication, whether it facilitates learning regardless of, for example, who talks more. Based on over a decade of fine grained analysis of video recorded ESL classroom interaction, this book offers one way of seeing and gauging the quality of classroom communication beyond distributions and categories. In particular, by parsing detailed transcripts of actual classroom interaction, it invites reflective conversations on how three principles of skillful classroom communication may be practiced in the micro moments of classroom interaction, fostering an inviting environment, attending to student voices, and balancing competing demands.

FAB The goal is to cultivate a mentality of micro reflection, one that sensitizes teachers to the consequentiality of every move they make as they make them in the simultaneity and sequentiality of second by second classroom interaction.

Reflective Language Teaching Thomas S. C. Farrell, 2015-08-28 The need for ongoing teacher development has been a recurring theme in the field of TESOL in recent years. Not everything a language teacher needs to know can be provided at the pre service level, and the knowledge base of teaching is constantly changing. Based on cutting edge research illustrated through case studies, this book outlines strategies for professional development through reflective practice in the language classroom. Accessible and comprehensive, the book presupposes no prior knowledge of linguistics or language teaching, and each chapter includes reflective discussion questions to help the reader apply the strategies and procedures discussed. This book will be invaluable to postgraduate students of TESOL and applied linguistics, and in service language teachers.
