Learning to Mentor-as-Praxis Lily Orland-Barak, 2010-03-10 Lily Orland Barak offers us a breathtaking work of science ction Or perhaps I should say science and ction The science side of the equation employs sophisticated technique for observing and describing interpersonal and intrapersonal dynamics among professionals in education Both dramatic and seemingly ordinary episodes in the lives of teachers in relational tension with one another are analyzed with scienti c care precision and insight The scienti c study of mentoring is like the scienti c study of soap bubbles their formation growth and sudden exit from the visible world with a nearly soundless pop Scienti c and intellectual tools can be used to describe and predict the behavior of soap bubbles to study their colors shapes surface tension and tiny mass The same is true of the study of mentoring But in both cases the greatest care must be taken to avoid popping the almost m ically elegant form to avoid destroying the delicate relationship by rushing in by heavy attempts at control or by premature dissection or even by paying attention too intensely to a private personal relationship Mentoring is best studied by being still by listening with authentic interest and by using our peripheral vision The science and the scientist have done their best work here The ction side of this ne book gives life to telling examples of mentoring in action
