The Game Of The Rose The Third World In The Global Flower Trade:

The Game of the Rose Niala Maharaj, Gaston Dorren, 1995 The Dutch no longer rule supreme in the world flower market Since the late eighties developing countries such as Colombia and Kenya have seized a large and growing market share The Game of the Rose is a report from the frontlines of this new War of the Roses and Other Cut Flowers Are Southern growers cornering the market European growers fear their tropical competitors and with reason Yet they also do thriving business with growers in Africa India and South America The South pays highly for the services of Northern managers crop specialists marketing experts for Northern plant material and for Northern equipment Many of the African growers themselves are European The developing countries furnish the flower trade with cheap labour with scarce arable land and even scarcer water resources They expose their populations to carelessly sprayed toxic pesticides Who profits The profits from the flower industry are highly uncertain and are in any case being drained off to the North Why then are Northern development consultants advising governments and entrepreneurs in the South to adopt such a risky and disadvantageous strategy

Assembling Flowers and Cultivating Homes Greta Friedemann-Sánchez, 2006-03-30 Colombia is a major exporter of fresh cut flowers As in other global assembly line industries women constitute a majority of Colombia's floriculture workforce This ethnographic study explores the links between agro industrial employment in the context of economic adjustment programs and the individual experience of employment and economic change at the household level Author Greta Friedemann Sánchez's challenges the current academic consensus that transnational assembly line industries reinforce patriarchal ideologies of reproduction and the exploitation of women What from a global perspective may be perceived as exploitation can be seen from the local perspective as an opportunity within the community Specifically the study focuses on how the interrelated factors of formal employment wage income property ownership social capital and self esteem articulate with women's resistance to male dominated households and domestic violence Expertly combining qualitative and quantitative methodologies Assembling Flowers and Cultivating Homes contributes greatly to the study of gender and power household economics and structure and Latin American society

Contested Environments Nick Bingham, Andrew Blowers, Chris Belshaw, 2003-07-09 Why are food scares become so common Whose voices count in decisions affecting the landscapes where we live Will we soon be wars over water What makes people protest outside international trade meetings These are just a few of the questions that are explored in Contested Environments By bringing together perspectives from science social science technology and humanities the book addresses in a uniquely interdisciplinary way why environmental issues are so often controversial Other features include the detailed examination of a wide range of topics from specific disputes such as those around GM crops national parks energy policy water supply and international trade to broader debates like environmental justice economic valuation of environments and the media the promotion of integrative thinking through the book wide use of the concepts of value power and action the inclusion of frequent activities to encourage readers to develop both their appreciation of particular issues and generic skills the rich illustration of the text with examples from around the world The book is part of a series entitled Environment Change Contest and Response The series forms a significant part of an interdisciplinary Open University course on environmental matters The other books in the series are Understanding Environmental Issues Changing Environments Environmental Responses Ibss: Economics: 1995

Compiled by the British Library of Political and Economic Science at the London School of Economics,1996 The IBSS is the essential tool for librarians university departments research institutions and any public or private institutions whose work requires access to up to date and comprehensive knowledge of the social sciences A Feast of Flowers Christopher

Krupa,2022-04-05 When Ecuador s cut flower industry took off in the mid 1980s it rode a wave of international credit peddling and currency speculation that would lead countries of the Global South into successive debt crises and northern financial firms to fortune and dominion By the start of the twenty first century as the Ecuadorian economy collapsed and its ties with international finance became strained flower exporters rebuilt their businesses around the profitability of their indigenous labor force drawing local communities deeply into new plantation systems taking over the highlands In A Feast of Flowers Christopher Krupa goes inside Ecuador s booming cut flower industry to chronicle the ways its capitalist pioneers built a booming export industry around a racial ideology turning indigenous people s purported differences into resources for industrial expansion At the core of this racial system is a belief central to postcolonial science and politics in Ecuador in capitalism s unique capacity to change people s racial identity and to liberate oppressed populations from racial subordination Krupa shows how such views not only guide how indigenous people are today incorporated into demanding labor systems in Ecuador s new export plantations but also how indigenous minds and bodies became sites of study and intervention by scientists politicians and economic planners throughout the last century all looking to change indigenous people in some way Combining nearly two decades of ethnographic and historical research A Feast of Flowers shows how aggressive capitalist expansion in postcolonial contexts may revive longstanding intersections between race and economy to facilitate new modes of dispossession under the guise of humanitarian intervention Flower Confidential Amy

Stewart,2008-03-18 A globe trotting behind the scenes look at the dazzling world of flowers and the fascinating industry it has created Award winning author Amy Stewart takes readers on an around the world behind the scenes look at the flower industry and how it has sought for better or worse to achieve perfection She tracks down the hybridizers geneticists farmers and florists working to invent manufacture and sell flowers that are bigger brighter and sturdier than anything nature can provide There s a scientist intent on developing the first genetically modified blue rose an eccentric horticultural legend who created the most popular lily a breeder of gerberas of every color imaginable and an Ecuadorean farmer growing exquisite roses the floral equivalent of a Tiffany diamond And at every turn she discovers the startling intersection of nature and technology of sentiment and commerce At the End of Property Veit Braun,2024-06-25 Recent decades have witnessed the creation of new types of property systems ranging from data ownership to national control over genetic resources This trend has significant implications for wealth distribution and our understanding of who can own what This book explores the idea of ownership in the realm of plant breeding revealing how plants have been legally and materially transformed into property It highlights the controversial aspects of turning seeds plants and genes into property and how this endangers the viability of the seed industry Examining ownership not simply as a legal concept but as a bundle of laws practices and technologies this is a valuable contribution that will interest scholars of intellectual property studies the anthropology of markets science and technology studies and related fields Technology, Adaptation, and Exports Vandana Chandra, 2006-01-01 The literature on technological change and growth has mainly used econometric models to establish that factors such as the degree of openness skills research and development expenditures number of patents etc are critical determinants of innovation and its effect on growth However this approach fails to explain the role of institutions and policies that created the environment for innovation Using 10 case studies from developing countries this book examines how governments fostered technological adaptation through public private partnerships to develop world class exporters in high growth non traditional industries

Garden Tourism Richard Benfield, 2013 Garden visitation has been a tourism motivator for many years and can now be enjoyed in many different forms Private garden visiting historical garden tourism urban gardens and a myriad of festivals shows and events all allow the green fingered enthusiast to appreciate the natural world This book traces the history of garden visitation and examines tourist motivations to visit gardens Useful for garden managers and tourism students as well as casual readers it also examines management and marketing of gardens for tourism purposes before concluding with a detailed look at the form and tourism based role of gardens in the future Environmental Policy Jane Roberts, 2004 Within the overall context of sustainable development Environmental Policy discusses the opportunities and constraints that environmental systems place upon the operation of human systems It suggests environmental policy is a potential way to modify the operation of human systems so that they function within environmental constraints Key social scientific concepts political social and economic are used to explain the background for the formulation and implementation of environmental policy Environmental problems the role of humans in creating them sustainable development and how this concept relates to environmental policy are all introduced The book then considers environmental policy formulation implementation and evaluation within three specific contexts the firm the nation state and at the international level It also reviews the place of economics science and technology in environmental policy Detailed case studies drawn from a range of international examples are used throughout to illustrate issues such as global warming international trade tourism and the human rights of indigenous peoples It is well illustrated and includes end of chapter summaries and further reading
