The Future Of The Sea Based Deterrent:

The Future of the Sea-based Deterrent Kosta Tsipis, Bernard Taub Feld, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, 1973 The objective of this book is to ascertain whether extending arms control to cover ASW weapons systems would measurably improve the calculated confidence that defense analysts place in the long term viability of the missile submarine deterrent No sector of a superpower's defense system is quite so invulnerable against a preemptive attack as its fleet of highly mobile deep diving long ranging missile bearing submarines These make possible a second strike capability that acts as a forceful deterrent against aggression But this situation could become unbalanced through the development of effective techniques of strategic antisubmarine warfare ASW The objective of this book is to ascertain whether extending arms control to cover ASW weapons systems would measurably improve the calculated confidence that defense analysts place in the long term viability of the missile submarine deterrent In the course of investigating many questions a major conclusion that emerges is that there are only a small number of potential measures for strategic ASW control that would significantly increase confidence in this deterrent but that the matter is not now urgent in any case because any threat to the submarine deterrent from ASW seems at the moment uncertain and very far in the future These concerns are addressed in the book by a group of contributors who originally delivered their papers at a conference organized by the American Academy of Arts and Sciences with the support and cooperation of the Carnegie Endowment for Peace the Alfred P Sloan Foundation and the Johnson Foundation The conference was held at Wingspread the headquarters of the Johnson Foundation in Racine Wisconsin in November 1972 The papers range in content from technical considerations to political and legal concerns

START and the Future of Deterrence Michael J. Mazarr, 1990-06-18 Examining the future of nuclear deterrence in the 1990s and beyond this book outlines aspects of the evolving strategic environment It also projects the likely future of deterrence strategies and strategic force postures Other topics such as the Soviet nuclear doctrine are also covered The Future Of Deterrence Robbin F Laird, Betsy Jacobs, 2019-07-11 The editors would like to express their thanks to a number of colleagues whose insights and comments contributed to the development of the book Among those who were particularly helpful were Robert Nurick Vic Utgoff Mike Clarke Jorg Baldouf Jean Chabaud John Roper Edwina Moreton Lawrence Freedman Francois Heisbourg and Harley Balzer We are particularly grateful to General William Y Smith President of the Institute for Defense Analyses for his intellectual encouragement The Future of Extended Deterrence Stéfanie von Hlatky, Andreas Wenger, 2015-09-01 Are NATO's mutual security commitments strong enough today to deter all adversaries Is the nuclear umbrella as credible as it was during the Cold War Backed by the full range of US and allied military capabilities NATO's mutual defense treaty has been enormously successful but today's commitments are strained by military budget cuts and antinuclear sentiment The United States has also shifted its focus away from European security during the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq and more recently with the Asia rebalance Will a resurgent Russia change this The Future of Extended

Deterrence brings together experts and scholars from the policy and academic worlds to provide a theoretically rich and detailed analysis of post Cold War nuclear weapons policy nuclear deterrence alliance commitments nonproliferation and missile defense in NATO but with implications far beyond The contributors analyze not only American policy and ideas but also the ways NATO members interpret their own continued political and strategic role in the alliance In depth and multifaceted The Future of Extended Deterrence is an essential resource for policy practitioners and scholars of nuclear deterrence arms control missile defense and the NATO alliance Hearings United States.
