Countess of Pembroke's Arcadia he revealed that the English language was as he claimed indeed capable of any excellent exercising of it Through the influence of his personality his critical insight and his brilliant achievement in both poetry and prose which Professor Hamilton in this study establishes through careful analysis Sidney became the central figure of the English literary Renaissance

Sir Philip Sidney Philip Sidney, 1994 Born in 1554 Sir Philip Sidney was hailed as the perfect Renaissance patron soldier soldier lover and courtier but it was only after his untimely death at the age of thirty two that his literary achievements were truly recognized This collection includes supplementary texts such as his letters and the numerous elegies which appeared after his death help illustrate the wide spectrum of his achievements and the admiration he inspired in his contemporaries

Symmetry and Sense Robert L. Montgomery, 1961-06-01 Few Elizabethans left the image of their personalities cut so deeply into the Renaissance imagination as did Sir Philip Sidney Widely admired in his own time Sidney must seem to the modern reader almost universally accomplished His talents as courtier diplomat soldier scholar novelist and poet are history Almost immediately after Sidney's death in battle against the Spaniards in the Low Countries the process of legend began and the legend has survived sometimes obscuring the facts The versatile Renaissance man has become in the eyes of some critics the romantic lover whose frustrations and despair found release in the confessional form of the sonnet sequence Astrophel and Stella and in other poems To show these poems to be consciously constructed works of art not simply passionate outbursts of romantic emotion is one aim of this study The author examines Sidney as poet and critic concentrating his study on rhetorical technique and poetic rhythm and form He shows Sidney experimenting with the symmetrical possibilities of rhythm and phrase practicing the ornateness current and acceptable in his day He examines Sidney's comment on such a style in The Defense of Poesy and the ways in which the poet's own work agreed with or departed from his expressed opinions He also balances Sidney's poetry against the powerful tradition of Petrarchan love literature and the equally powerful Renaissance impulse to subject passion to the rule of reason Finally in an extended analysis of Astrophel and Stella he shows Sidney as the master of a plainer wittier more subtly fashioned style and a complex more dramatically immediate form What emerges from the study is not the personality of the poet but the principles of his art and the value of his achievement in the mainstream of English Renaissance verse

The Matter of Song in Early Modern England Katherine R. Larson, 2019-08-29 Given the variety and richness of the sixteenth and seventeenth century English songscape it might seem unsurprising to suggest that early modern song needs to be considered as sung When a reader encounters a song in a sonnet sequence a romance and even a masque or a play however the tendency is to engage with it as poem rather than as musical performance Opening up the notion of song from a performance based perspective The Matter of Song in Early Modern England considers the implications of reading song not simply as lyric text but as an embodied and gendered musical practice Animating the traces of song preserved in physiological and philosophical commentaries singing handbooks poetic treatises and literary texts ranging from Mary Sidney Herbert's Psalmes to John Milton's Comus the book confronts song's ephemerality its lexical and sonic capriciousness and its airy substance These features can resist critical analysis but were vital to song's affective workings in the early modern period The volume foregrounds the need to attend much more closely to the embodied and musical dimensions of literary production and circulation in sixteenth and seventeenth century England It also makes an important and timely contribution to our understanding of women's engagement with song as writers and as performers A companion recording of fourteen songs featuring Larson soprano and Lucas Harris lute brings the project's innovative methodology and central case studies to life
