sensory history of New Deal era eating from the FWP archives From ravioli the diminutive derbies of pastries the crowns stuffed with a well seasoned paste to barbeque seasoning that integrated salt black pepper dried red chili powder garlic oregano cumin seed and cayenne pepper while tomatoes green chili peppers onions and olive oil made up the sauce Begin describes in mouth watering detail how Americans tasted their food They did so in ways that varied and varied widely depending on race ethnicity class and region Begin explores how likes and dislikes cravings and disgust operated within local sensory economies that she culls from the FWP s vivid descriptions visual cues culinary expectations recipes and accounts of restaurant meals She illustrates how nostalgia prescriptive gender ideals and racial stereotypes shaped how the FWP was able to frame regional food cultures as American

The Taste of Place Amy B. Trubek, 2008 While much has been written about the concept of terroir as it relates to wine this book expands the concept into cuisine and culture more broadly Bringing together stories of people farming cooking and eating the author focuses on a series of examples ranging from shagbark hickory nuts in Wisconsin to wines from northern California

Epiphany in the Wilderness Karen R. Jones, 2016-01-02 Whether fulfilling subsistence needs or featured in stories of grand adventure hunting loomed large in the material and the imagined landscape of the nineteenth century West Epiphany in the Wilderness explores the social political economic and environmental dynamics of hunting on the frontier in three acts using performance as a trail guide and focusing on the production of a cultural ecology of the chase in literature art photography and taxidermy Using the metaphor of the theater Jones argues that the West was a crucial stage that framed the performance of the American character as an independent resourceful resilient and rugged individual The leading actor was the all conquering masculine hunter hero the sharpshooting man of the wilderness who tamed and claimed the West with each provident step Women were also a significant part of the story treading the game trails as plucky adventurers and resilient homesteaders and acting out their exploits in autobiographical accounts and stage shows Epiphany in the Wilderness informs various academic debates surrounding the frontier period including the construction of nature as a site of personal challenge gun culture gender adaptations and the crafting of the masculine wilderness hero figure wildlife management and consumption memorializing and trophy taking and the juxtaposition of a closing frontier with an emerging conservation movement
