Tatary O Tatarskom:

The Elusive Empire Matthew P. Romaniello, 2012-01-30 In 1552 Muscovite Russia conquered the city of Kazan on the Volga River. It was the first Orthodox Christian victory against Islam since the fall of Constantinople, a turning point that over the next four years would complete Moscow's control over the river. This conquest provided a direct trade route with the Middle East and would transform Muscovy into a global power. As Matthew Romaniello shows, however, learning to manage the conquered lands and peoples would take decades. Russia did not succeed in empire building because of its strength, leadership, or even the weakness of its neighbors. Romaniello contends it succeeded by managing its failures. Faced with the difficulty of assimilating culturally and religiously alien peoples across thousands of miles, the Russian state was forced to compromise in ways that for a time permitted local elites of diverse backgrounds to share in governance and to preserve a measure of autonomy. Conscious manipulation of political and religious language proved more vital than sheer military might. For early modern Russia, empire was still elusive, an aspiration to political, economic, and military control challenged by continuing resistance, mismanagement, and tenuous influence over vast expanses of territory. Russia's Islamic Threat

Gordon M. Hahn, 2007-01-01 Why contemporary Russia is a dangerous seedbed for radicalized Islam and what we should be doing about it. The notion that the Chechen-led jihad in the North Caucasus is an indigenous affair far removed from the global Islamist jihad is perhaps comforting to Americans and other Westerners, but it is a myth. Moreover, the North Caucasus jihad may be the harbinger of a much larger Muslim challenge to Russia's political stability and state integrity. So concludes Gordon M. Hahn in this meticulously researched analysis of Russia's emerging Islamic threat. Hahn draws an explicit picture of an already sophisticated and effective Chechen jihadist network that is expanding the territorial scope of its operations with inspiration and some assistance from the global jihadist movement. Given its proximity to large stockpiles of diverse weapons, the expanding population of Russian-based Islamist terrorists is particular cause for alarm, the author warns. The book lifts the veil on the Muslim challenge to Russia's political stability, national security, and state integrity, as well as the potentially grave threat to international and U.S. security. Hahn shows that many of the demographic, historical, socioeconomic, political, and religious factors sparking jihadi revolution in Muslim countries are extant in Russia and are driving revolutionary Islamist terrorism there. In a penetrating conclusion to the book, the author analyzes the policies that have fueled the rise of militant Islam and offers a series of important recommendations for policymakers. Becoming Muslim in Imperial Russia

Agnès Nilüfer Kefeli, 2014-12-18 In the nineteenth century, the Russian Empire's Middle Volga region, today's Tatarstan, was the site of a prolonged struggle between Russian Orthodoxy and Islam, each of which sought to solidify its influence among the frontier's mix of Turkic, Finno-Ugric, and Slavic peoples. The immediate catalyst of the events that Agnès Nilüfer Kefeli chronicles in Becoming Muslim in Imperial Russia was the collective turn to Islam by many of the region's Krashens, the Muslim and animist Tatars who converted to Russian Orthodoxy between the sixteenth and eighteenth centuries The traditional view holds that the apostates had really been Muslim all along or that their conversions had been forced by the state or undertaken voluntarily as a matter of convenience In Kefeli s view this argument vastly oversimplifies the complexity of a region where many participated in the religious cultures of both Islam and Orthodox Christianity and where a vibrant Krashen community has survived to the present By analyzing Russian Eurasian and Central Asian ethnographic administrative literary and missionary sources Kefeli shows how traditional education with Sufi mystical components helped to Islamize Finno Ugric and Turkic peoples in the Kama Volga countryside and set the stage for the development of modernist Islam in Russia Of particular interest is Kefeli s emphasis on the role that Tatar women both Krashen and Muslim played as holders and transmitters of Sufi knowledge Today she notes intellectuals and mullahs in Tatarstan seek to revive both Sufi and modernist traditions to counteract new expressions of Islam and promote a purely Tatar Islam aware of its specificity in a post Christian and secular environment Russia's Orient Daniel R.

the city of Bukhara during the Russian Imperial era For Muslims in Russia Bukhara's prestige was manifested in genealogies fashion and in the elevated legal status of Bukharan communities in Russia The historical relationship of Russia's Muslim communities with Bukhara was founded above all on Bukhara's reputation as a holy city of Islam an abode of great Sufis and a center of Islamic scholarship The emergence of Islamic reformism critiquing Bukhara's sacred status led by Tatar scholars who were trained in Bukhara created a number of paradoxes The symbol of Bukhara became an important feature in theological and political debates among Russia's Muslims

Islamic Historiography and 'Bulghar' Identity Among the Tatars and Bashkirs of Russia Allen Frank, 2021-10-11 This extremely timely book deals with the development of Bulghar regional identity among Tatars and Bashkirs i.e. Volga Ural Muslims Based on locally produced Islamic manuscripts the book examines how these Muslims manipulated local legends conversion narratives and sacred geography to create a body of sacred historiography that expressed a meaningful regional identity and one which responds to the changing relationship between these Muslims and the Russian state over the nineteenth century The book also traces the debate between traditionalist supporters and reformist detractors of this sacred historiography in the nineteenth century and addresses the fate of Bulghar identity in the twentieth century including its transformation in Soviet and post Soviet times into a secularized national identity
