Teacher Student Others:

Teacher-Student Relationships: Toward Personalized Education Beth Bernstein-Yamashiro, Gil G. Noam, 2013-04-16 Explore the complexity of teacher student relationships in secondary school settings and learn how these largely unscripted relationships function for students and teachers in their learning and socioemotional development For teachers the relationships provide a foundation for pedagogical and curricular endeavors and lead to their increased investment in students growth development and academic success Students who have such relationships feel more comfortable in their learning environments interested in the material and motivated to perform well We discuss what these relationships look like from the perspectives of teacher and student Topics include Drawing appropriate boundaries School provided guidelines and guidance Formats for supporting teachers A whole school approach to working on students emotional challenges Relationships in after school programs The voices of teachers and students in this volume show how much young people want to feel known and engage with teachers and how much teachers feel rewarded and invigorated by taking the step to connect with students on this level This is the 137th volume of New Directions for Youth Development the Jossey Bass quarterly report series dedicated to bringing together everyone concerned with helping young people including scholars practitioners and people from different disciplines and professions

The Influence of Teacher-Student Relationships and Feedback on Students' Engagement with Learning Roger Wood, 2018-06-11 This book presents a potential hierarchy between the three basic psychological needs central to Self Determination Theory SDT Findings from the author's research suggest that the motivation to exercise autonomy is an outcome that is cumulatively influenced by the perceived quality of the teacher student relationship and students perceived competence within specific learning contexts and with a specific teacher These findings are the basis for three hypotheses regarding students motivation to engage with learning activities The first is that perceived competence is informed by and reciprocally informs the quality of the teacher student relationship The second is that students perceived competence and the quality of the teacher student relationship have a combined impact upon students autonomous motivation The final posit is that a teacher can be autonomy supportive both prior to and during activities where students have opportunities to exercise their autonomy Such autonomy support includes the influence of teacher feedback upon students perceived competence and their subsequent motivation to autonomously engage with learning activities This research begins to unravel such motivational interplay through an SDT informed model which is used as the basis for discussing the specific influence of teacher feedback and autonomy support upon students engagement with learning activities in formal learning settings The findings and model are worthy of further testing and development as part of the wider agenda of student engagement wellbeing and positive psychology prevalent in educational research education psychology and the philosophy of social motivation
