

Principes Fondamentaux

- CITI classe les unités statistiques selon leur principale activité
- Unités
 - Théoriquement, tous les types d'unités peuvent être classifiées
 - Cependant, la structure et le niveau de détail de CITI visent à mesurer la production, et pour cela, l'établissement et l'unité de type-d'activité sont les unités les plus appropriées
 - Idéalement, les unités doivent être homogènes par rapport aux activités et à l'emplacement
 - Cependant, le choix de l'unité n'est pas réellement un problème de CITI
 - Les restrictions sont souvent occasionnées par la disponibilité des données
