Improving the Social Security Disability Decision Process Institute of Medicine, Board on Military and Veterans Health, Committee on Improving the Disability Decision Process: SSA's Listing of Impairments and Agency Access to Medical Expertise, 2007-06-14 The Social Security Administration SSA provides Social Security Disability Insurance SSDI benefits to disabled persons of less than full retirement age and to their dependents SSA also provides Supplemental Security Income SSI payments to disabled persons who are under age 65 For both programs disability is defined as a medically determinable physical or mental impairment that prevents an individual from engaging in any substantial gainful activity and is expected to last at least 12 months or result in death Assuming that an applicant meets the nonmedical requirements for eligibility e g quarters of covered employment for SSDI income and asset limits for SSI the file is sent to the Disability Determination Services DDS agency operated by the state in which he or she lives for a determination of medical eligibility SSA reimburses the states for the full costs of the DDSs The DDSs apply a sequential decision process specified by SSA to make an initial decision whether a claim should be allowed or denied If the claim is denied the decision can be appealed through several levels of administrative and judicial review On average the DDSs allow 37 percent of the claims they adjudicate through the five step process A third of those denied decide to appeal and three quarters of the appeals result in allowances Nearly 30 percent of the allowances made each year are made during the appeals process after an initial denial In 2003 the Commissioner of Social Security announced her intent to develop a new approach to disability determination In late 2004 SSA asked the Institute of Medicine IOM to help in two areas related to its initiatives to improve the disability decision process 1 Improvements in the criteria for determining the severity of impairments and 2 Improvements in the use of medical expertise in the disability decision process This interim report provides preliminary recommendations addressing the three tasks that relate to medical expertise issues with a special focus on the appropriate qualifications of medical and psychological experts involved in disability decision making After further information gathering and analyses of the effectiveness of the disability decision process in identifying those who qualify for benefits and those who do not the committee may refine its recommendations concerning medical and psychological expertise in the final report The final report will address a number of issues with potential implications for the qualifications of the medical experts involved in the disability decision process

Social Security Disability Law and the American Labor Market Jon C. Dubin, 2021-09-21 How social security disability law is out of touch with the contemporary American labor market Passing down nearly a million decisions each year more judges handle disability cases for the Social Security Administration than federal civil and criminal cases combined In Social Security Disability Law and the American Labor Market Jon C Dubin challenges the contemporary policies for determining disability benefits and work assessment He posits the fundamental questions where are the jobs for persons with significant medical and vocational challenges And how does the administration misfire in its standards and processes for answering that question Deploying his profound understanding of the Social Security Administration and Disability law and policy he demystifies the system showing us its complex inner mechanisms and flaws its history and evolution and how changes in the labor market have rendered some agency processes obsolete Dubin lays out how those who advocate eviscerating program coverage and needed life support benefits in the guise of modernizing these procedures would reduce the capacity for the Social Security Administration to function properly and serve its intended beneficiaries and argues that the disability system should instead be mended not ended Dubin argues that while it may seem counterintuitive the transformation from an industrial economy to a twenty first century service economy in the information age with increased automation and resulting diminished demand for arduous physical labor has not meaningfully reduced the relevance of or need for the disability benefits programs Indeed they have created new and different obstacles to work adjustments based on the need for other skills and capacities in the new economy especially for the significant portion of persons with cognitive psychiatric neuro psychological or other mental impairments Therefore while the disability program is in dire need of empirically supported updating and measures to remedy identified deficiencies obsolescence inconsistencies in application and racial economic and other inequities the program s framework is sufficiently broad and enduring to remain relevant and faithful to the Act s congressional beneficent purposes and aspirations
