Framing First Contact Kate Elliott,2020-10-29 Representations of first contact the first meetings of European explorers and Native Americans have always had a central place in our nation s historical and visual record They have also had a key role in shaping and interpreting that record In Framing First Contact author Kate Elliott looks at paintings by artists from George Catlin to Charles M Russell and explores what first contact images tell us about the process of constructing national myths and how those myths acquired different meanings at different points in our nation s history First contact images with their focus on beginnings rather than conclusive action or determined outcomes might depict historical events in a variety of ways Elliott argues that nineteenth century artists responding to the ambiguity and indeterminacy of the subject used the visualized space between cultures meeting for the first time to address critical contemporary questions and anxieties Taking works from the 1840s through the 1910s as case studies paintings by Robert W Weir Thomas Moran and Albert Bierstadt along with Catlin and Russell Elliott shows how many first contact representations especially those commissioned and conceived as official history speak blatantly of conquest racial superiority and imperialism Yet others communicate more nuanced messages that might surprise contemporary viewers Elliott suggests it was the very openness of the subject of first contact that allowed artists consciously or not to speak of contemporary issues beyond imperialism and conquest Uncovering those issues Framing First Contact forces us to think about why we tell the stories we do and why those stories matter Journal of the Archives of American Art Archives of American Art,2006 The Unfinished Exhibition Susanna Gold,2016-12-08 The Unfinished Exhibition the first comprehensive examination of American art at the Centennial explains the critical role of visual culture in negotiating memories of the nation s past that conflicted with the optimism that Exhibition officials promoted Supporting novel iconographical interpretations with myriad primary source material author Susanna W Gold demonstrates how the art galleries and the audiences who visited them addressed the lingering traumas of battle the uneasy re unification of North and South and the persisting racial tensions in the post Emancipation era Museum Studies ,1966
