Contested Natures Phil Macnaghten, John Urry, 1998-05-21 Demonstrating that all notions of nature are inextricably entangled in different forms of social life the text elaborates the many ways in which the apparently natural world has been produced from within particular social practices These are analyzed in terms of different senses different times and the production of distinct spaces including the local the national and the global The authors emphasize the importance of cultural understandings of the physical world highlighting the ways in which these have been routinely misunderstood by academic and policy discourses They show that popular conceptions of and attitudes to nature are often contradictory and that there are no simple ways of prevailing upon people to Town and Country Planning in the UK Simin Davoudi, David Webb, Geoff Vigar, John Pendlebury, Tim Townshend, Trevor Hart, Vincent Nadin, 2014-12-05 Town and country planning has never been more important to the UK nor more prominent in national debate Planning generates great controversy whether it s spending 80m and four years inquiry into Heathrow s Terminal 5 or the 200 proposed wind turbines in the Shetland Isles On a smaller scale telecoms masts take away house extensions and even fences are often the cause of local conflict Town and Country Planning in the UK has been extensively revised by a new author group This 15th Edition incorporates the major changes to planning introduced by the coalition government elected in 2010 particularly through the National Planning Policy Framework and associated practice guidance and the Localism Act It provides a critical discussion of the systems of planning the procedures for managing development and land use change and the mechanisms for implementing policy and proposals It reviews current policy for sustainable development and the associated economic social and environmental themes relevant to planning in both urban and rural contexts Contemporary arrangements are explained with reference to their historical development the influence of the European Union the roles of central and local government and developing social and economic demands for land use change Detailed consideration is given to the nature of planning and its historical evolution the role of the EU central regional and local government mechanisms for developing policy and managing these changes policies for guiding and delivering housing and economic development sustainable development principles for planning including pollution control the importance of design in planning conserving the heritage community engagement in planning The many recent changes to the system are explained in detail the new national planning policy framework the impact of the loss of the regional tier in planning and of the insertion of neighbourhood level planning the transition from development control to development management the continued and growing importance of environmental matters in planning community engagement partnership working changes to planning gain and the introduction of the Community Infrastructure Levy and new initiatives across a number of other themes Notes on further reading are provided and at the end of the book there is an extensive bibliography maintaining its reputation as the bible of British planning Property, Planning and Protest: The

Contentious Politics of Housing Supply Quintin Bradley, 2023-03-17 The struggle for the right to housing is a battle over property rights and land use For housing to be provided as a human need land must be recognised as a common right Property Planning and Protest is a compelling new investigation into public opposition to housing and real estate development Its innovative materialist approach is grounded in the political economy of land value and it recognises the conflict between communities and real estate capital as a struggle over land and property rights Property Planning and Protest is about a social movement struggling for democratic representation in land use decisions The amenity groups it describes champion a democratic plan led system that allocates land for social and environmental goals Situating this movement in a history of land reform and common rights this book sets out a persuasive new vision of democratic planning and affordable housing for all

Design Review Brenda C. Scheer, Wolfgang F.E. Preiser, 2012-12-06 That the topic of design review is somehow troubling My biases are clear from the start I am among those who believe that despite all signals to the contrary the physical structure of our environment is probably one thing all readers can agree on Beyond this however I suspect prospects of consensus are dim Differing opinions can be managed and that controlling it is on the subject likely range from those desiring the key to the amelioration of numerous problems control to those desiring freedom Say one camp confronting society today I believe that design our physical and natural environments are going can solve a host of problems and that the design to hell in a hand basket Says the other design of the physical environment does influence be review boards are only as good as their members behavior more often than not their interventions produce Clearly this is a perspective that encompasses mediocre architecture more than one building at a time and demands As a town planner and architect I am sympathetic that each building understand its place in a larger context to the full range of sentiment Perhaps a context the city Indeed anyone proposing discussion of these two concepts control and physical solutions to urban problems is designing freedom and their differences would now be or as may seem more often the case destroying useful But let me instead suggest that both position the city

Conservation and the City Peter Larkham, 2002-03-11 It is a widely held belief that cities must change or they will wither and die One of the key problems of urbanization is how to cope with these changes while retaining the structures constructed and maintained by previous generations Conservation and the City is a study of conservation and change throughout the built environment city centres suburbs and even tiny villages and how the activities of conservation interact with the planning system Using detailed case studies from Britain and the Westernized world the author examines some of the key social economic and psychological ideas which support conservation as well as studying the urban landscape and the agents of change Conservation and the City seeks to understand urban conservation and in doing so presents possible solutions for managing change in the built environment of the future Environmental Movements and Waste Infrastructure Christopher Rootes, Liam Leonard, 2013-09-13 As rates of consumption grow the problem of waste management has increased significantly National and local waste authorities seek to manage such problems through the implementation of state regulation and construction of waste infrastructure including landfills and incinerators These however are undertaken in a context of increasing supra state regulatory frameworks and directives on waste management and of increasing activity by multi national corporations and are increasingly contested by activists in the affected communities Environmental Movements and Waste Infrastructure sheds new light on the structures of political opportunity that confront environmental movements that challenge the state or corporate sector A series of case studies on collective action campaigns from the EU US and Asia is elaborated in order to illuminate the similarities and differences between anti incinerator protests within different states Several contributions share a concern about cross border or transnational waste flows Each case study looks beyond its initial local frame of reference and goes on to interrogate assumptions about NIMBYism or localism demonstrating the wider linkages and networks established by both grassroots campaigns and state and multinational agencies This book was previously published as a special issue of Environmental Politics

Environmental Amenities and Regional Economic Development Todd L. Cherry, Dan Rickman, 2009-12-04 Economic development and the environment are presumed to be in conflict but the latter part of the twentieth century experienced a series of economic changes that increasingly questioned this view Economic activity became more footloose and the ability to attract productive labor became a prominent regional development concern Consequently environmental amenities began to have a larger role in determining the patterns of regional growth and development and subsequently moved to the forefront of current regional economic development thought and practice Environmental amenities provide non pecuniary benefits to area residents and induce in migration flows to regions that possess high levels of environmental amenities The attraction is particularly strong for those individuals with higher incomes and wealth The combined forces of increased demand for environmental amenities and increased spatial flexibility of production has brought environmental amenities to the forefront of current regional economic development thought and practice Regional economic development policy needs to consider the tradeoffs of attracting firms or people which requires an understanding of the role the environment plays directly or indirectly in attracting firms and households This book presents key papers that explore the role of the natural environment in regional economic development The papers contain critical insights and information for both researchers and practitioners interested in the nexus between environmental amenities and regional economic growth and development The book covers varied dimensions of this issue including the relative importance of amenities in recent variation in regional growth the role of local infrastructure in promoting amenity led development socio economic distribution concerns and sustainability of amenity based growth and the effects of local environmentally protected areas on other economic activities This book will be of most value to practitioners and academics specifically related to the areas of environmental economics regional economic development local and regional planning public administration and public policy
