The Logic Of Perception Bradfords

Jonathan Cohen, Mohan Matthen

The Logic Of Perception Bradfords:

The Logic of Perception Irvin Rock, 1983-01 The theory of visual perception that Irvin Rock develops and supports in this book with numerous original experiments views perception as the outcome of a process of unconscious inference problem solving and the building of structural descriptions of the external world It is a radical departure from his earlier work and contrasts with traditional perceptual theories like those of James J Gibson or the Gestalt view Rock experiments with a series of phenomena like motion perception illusory contours and size and brightness constancy and shows that they can be understood in terms of the knowledge applied by the visual system to the interpretation of the retinal image His work largely complements that being done in artificial intelligence demonstrating that the visual system is far more subtle and intelligent in many tasks which have not yet been modelled on the computer Irvin Rock a noted investigator of perceptual phenomena for nearly three decades is Professor of Psychology at Rutgers University

The Structure of Thinking Laura E. Wood, 2013-06-17 Analytic philosophers and cognitive scientists have long argued that the mind is a computer like syntactical engine and that all human mental capacities can be described as digital computational processes This book presents an alternative naturalistic view of human thinking arguing that computers are merely sophisticated machines Computers are only simulating thought when they crunch symbols not thinking Human cognition semantics de re reference indexicals meaning and causation are all rooted in human experience and life Without life and experience these elements of discourse and knowledge refer to nothing And without these elements of discourse and knowledge syntax is vacant structure not thinking

Connectionism and the Philosophy of Mind T. Horgan, J. Tienson, 2012-12-06 This series will include monographs and collections of studies devoted to the investigation and exploration of knowledge information and data processing systems of all kinds no matter whether human other animal or machine Its scope is intended to span the full range of interests from classical problems in the philosophy of mind and philosophical psychology through issues in cognitive psychology and sociobiology concerning the mental capabilities of other species to ideas related to artificial intelligence and to computer science While primary emphasis will be placed upon theoretical conceptual and epistemological aspects of these problems and domains empirical experimental and methodological studies will also appear from time to time One of the most if not the most exciting developments within cognitive science has been the emergence of connectionism as an alternative to the computational conception of the mind that tends to dominate the discipline In this volume John Tienson and Terence Horgan have brought together a fine collection of stimulating studies on connectionism and its significance As the Introduction explains the most pressing questions concern whether or not connectionism can provide a new conception of the nature of mentality By focusing on the similarities and differences between connectionism and other approaches to cognitive science the chapters of this book supply valuable resources that advance our understanding of these difficult issues J H F

Perception as Bayesian Inference David C. Knill, Whitman Richards, 1996-09-13 This 1996 book describes an exciting theoretical paradigm for visual perception based on experimental and computational insights

Knowledge and Language I. Kurcz, G.W. Shugar, J.H. Danks, 2009-06-17 How do people represent their knowledge about the world and use that knowledge for communication This question is the central theme of this book Among the aspects discussed in the first three sections are the relationship between formal logical descriptions of language and psychological analyses of language use how knowledge interacts with language use and childrens acquisition of language in different countries In the last two sections the topics discussed include the complex relationships between the development transmission and comprehension of intention and meaning the growth of the representation of social knowledge and the impact acquiring a language or two languages has on the development of the child s knowledge structures Ecological Approaches to Cognition Eugene Winograd, Robyn Fivush, William Hirst, 1999-04 This volume is far more than a festschrift it is a reflection of Neisser s profound impact on theory and methodology in many subdisciplines of psychology This book will be of value to all cognitive developmental and ecological psychologists

Computers, Brains and Minds P. Slezak, W.R. Albury, 2012-12-06 The institutionalization of History and Philosophy of Science as a distinct field of scholarly endeavour began comparatively early though not always under that name in the Australasian region An initial lecturing appointment was made at the University of Melbourne immediately after the Second World War in 1946 and other appointments followed as the subject underwent an expansion during the 1950s and 1960s similar to that which took place in other parts of the world Today there are major Departments at the University of Melbourne the University of New South Wales and the University of Wollongong and smaller groups active in many other parts of Australia and in New Zealand Australasian Studies in History and Philosophy of Science aims to provide a distinctive publication outlet for Australian and New Zealand scholars working in the general area of history philosophy and social studies of science Each volume comprises a group of essays on a connected theme edited by an Australian or a New Zealander with special expertise in that particular area Papers address general issues however rather than local ones parochial topics are avoided Further more though in each volume a majority of the contributors is from Australia or New Zealand contributions from elsewhere are by no means ruled out Quite the reverse in fact they are actively encouraged wherever appropriate to the balance of the volume in question

Color Ontology and Color Science Jonathan Cohen, Mohan Matthen, 2010-05-21 Leading philosophers and scientists consider what conclusions about color can be drawn when the latest analytic tools are applied to the most sophisticated color science Philosophers and scientists have long speculated about the nature of color Atomists such as Democritus thought color to be conventional not real Galileo and other key figures of the Scientific Revolution thought that it was an erroneous projection of our own sensations onto external objects More recently philosophers have enriched the debate about color by aligning the most advanced color science with the most sophisticated methods of analytical philosophy In this volume leading scientists and philosophers examine new problems with new analytic tools considering such topics as the psychophysical measurement of color and its implications the nature of color experience in both normal color perceivers and the color blind and questions that arise from what we now know about the neural processing of color information color consciousness and color language Taken together these papers point toward a complete restructuring of current orthodoxy concerning color experience and how it relates to objective reality Kuehni Jameson Mausfeld and Niederee discuss how the traditional framework of a three dimensional color space and basic color terms is far too simple to capture the complexities of color experience Clark and MacLeod discuss the difficulties of a materialist account of color experience Churchland Cohen Matthen and Westphal offer competing accounts of color ontology Finally Broackes and Byrne and Hilbert discuss the phenomenology of color blindness Contributors Justin Broackes Alex Byrne Paul M Churchland Austen Clark Jonathan Cohen David R Hilbert Kimberly A Jameson Rolf Kuehni Don I A MacLeod Mohan Matthen Rainer Mausfeld Richard Nieder e Jonathan Westphal Common Sense, Reasoning, and Rationality Renee Elio, 2002-02-07 As the eleventh volume in the New Directions in Cognitive Science series formerly the Vancouver Studies in Cognitive Science series this work promises superb scholarship and interdisciplinary appeal It addresses three areas of current and varied interest common sense reasoning and rationality While common sense and rationality often have been viewed as two distinct features in a unified cognitive map this volume offers novel even paradoxical views of the relationship Comprised of outstanding essays from distinguished philosophers it considers what constitutes human rationality behavior and intelligence covering diverse areas of philosophy psychology cognitive science and computer science Indeed it is at the forefront of cognitive research and promises to be of unprecedented influence across numerous disciplines The Psychology of Perspective and Renaissance Art Michael Kubovy, 1986 Michael Kubovy an experimental psychologist recounts the lively history of the invention of perspective in the fifteenth century and shows how as soon as the invention spread it was used to achieve subtle and fascinating aesthetic effects A clear presentation of the fundamental concepts of perspective and the reasons for its effectiveness drawing on the latest laboratory research on how people perceive leads into the development of a new theory to explain why Renaissance artists such as Leonardo and Mantegna used perspective in unorthodox ways which have puzzled art scholars This theory illuminates the author's broader consideration of the evolution of art the book proposes a resolution of the debate between those who believe that the invention discovery of perspective is a stage in the steady progress of art and those who believe that perspective is merely a conventional and arbitrary system for the representation of space
