Culture and the Senses Prof. Kathryn Geurts, 2003-01-09 Adding her stimulating and finely framed ethnography to recent work in the anthropology of the senses Kathryn Geurts investigates the cultural meaning system and resulting sensorium of Anlo Ewe speaking people in southeastern Ghana Geurts discovered that the five senses model has little relevance in Anlo culture where balance is a sense and balancing in a physical and psychological sense as well as in literal and metaphorical ways is an essential component of what it means to be human Much of perception falls into an Anlo category of seselelame literally feel feel at flesh inside in which what might be considered sensory input including the Western sixth sense notion of intuition comes from bodily feeling and the interior milieu The kind of mind body dichotomy that pervades Western European Anglo American cultural traditions and philosophical thought is absent Geurts relates how Anlo society privileges and elaborates what we would call kinesthesia which most Americans would not even identify as a sense After this nuanced exploration of an Anlo Ewe theory of inner states and their way of delineating external experience readers will never again take for granted the naturalness of sight touch taste hearing and smell

Experience and Possibility Joseph Mendola, 2021-01-11 Experience and Possibility concerns the modal ontology of experience It investigates the detailed metaphysics of the colors shapes and other concrete properties present in our experience of ordinary concrete objects and also of their spatial and temporal relations It examines their experienced particularity and the nature of their locations and material bits This detailed concern with specific cases reveals many inadequacies of traditional ontology But the central novelty of the book is an intense focus on the modal aspects of such experienced entities and what it reveals about modality in general The reality of such things would involve in surprising ways not merely what would hence be actual but also what would be merely possible This supports a general conception of modality of the possible and the necessary according to which the actual and the possible are locally entwined and involve different types of being The particulars properties and relations we experience involve distinctive forms of modal structure characteristic of specific sorts of universals and irreducible particularities When this experience is not veridical when for instance the color we experience is somewhat misleading about reality it is a puzzle how we have such experience nonetheless Exploration of these forms of modal structure is groundwork for a new account of how our neurophysiology explains such misleading experience how our physical structure delivers such qualia This is sketched for the case of experienced color Its core idea is that the apparent modal structure of things we experience is sometimes due to the actual modal structure of the neurophysiology that constitutes that experience
