Models of Employee Participation in a Changing Global Environment Ray Markey,Paul Gollan,Ann Hodkinson,Alain Chouraqui,Ulrike Veersma,2018-02-05 This title was first published in 2001 Management of the employment relationship changed markedly in the last two decades of the 21st century and a major part of this has been the extension of employee involvement and participation in the workplace Modern management theorists and researchers have commonly emphasized the importance of two way communication and co operation between management and labour in determining the success of human resource management HRM strategy and in maximizing workplace efficiency Some researchers argue employee participation and empowerment are progressive management practices which have universal benefits to performance enhancement as opposed to most other HRM practices whose success is contingent upon the organizational context This title explores these themes through an international collection of case studies which are the outcome of a comparative project of the Workers Participation Study Group of the International Industrial Relations Association IIRA

Reward Management Geoff White,Janet Druker,2004-08-02 There have been fundamental changes in remuneration practices in the UK over the last quarter century with a substantial decline in collective bargaining as the major method of pay determination and the growth of more individualistic systems based on employee performance skills or competency This new text which includes chapters by major UK academics and consultants who are specialists in the reward management field is the first to adopt a critical and theoretical approach to these changes in reward systems It covers the Institute of Personnel and Development s reward syllabus but unlike other reward books takes a thematic and theoretical approach to the material

The Insecure Workforce Edmund Heery,Professor Edmund Heery,John Salmon,2000-02-24 For the past two decades employment in Britain has been marked by a search for greater flexibility in the availability and use of labour In recent years however there has been mounting concern at the costs of this trend and an appreciation that the consequence of a flexible labour market may be an insecure workforce vulnerable to exploitation

Emotions, Decision-Making and Mass Atrocities Olaoluwa Olusanya, 2016-05-06 This book rehumanizes perpetrators of mass atrocities At present a victim perpetrator dichotomy appears to be the dominant paradigm perpetrators have either been mechanistically dehumanized that is perceived as unemotional hard hearted and conforming and thereby lacking the core features of human nature or alternatively they have been animalistically dehumanized In other words they are seen as immoral unintelligent lacking self control and likened to animals Within sociology and criminology the dominant view is that genocide and other mass atrocities are committed by technologically lobotomized perpetrators Somehow the process of rationalization is believed to have transformed these people from emotionally healthy people into hollow soulless shells of human beings or zombies devoid of a full range of normal emotions These people are considered bereft of any ability to reason think or feel yet ambulant and able to respond to surrounding stimuli However it is difficult to imagine crime especially those involving a group of people working together for the duration of a particular criminal activity without emotions For instance there is ample evidence suggesting that both crimes of passion and pre-meditated crimes involve emotional arousal Furthermore research in fields such as evolutionary biology psychology and sociology of work and organizations suggest that emotions are essential for human progress and survival In addition emotions help us make the right call in risky and uncertain situations in other words the majority of real life situations There is therefore a need to revisit existing assumptions around the role of emotions in mass atrocities
