Agricultural R and D in the Developing World Philip G. Pardey,Julian M. Alston,Roley Piggott,2006 The world's agricultural economy was transformed remarkably during the 20th century The agricultural productivity growth that fueled this change was generated primarily by agricultural R D financed and conducted by a small group of rich countries especially the United States but also Japan Germany and France In an increasingly interdependent world both rich and poor countries have depended on agricultural research conducted in the private and public laboratories of these few countries even if they have not contributed to financing the activity But now the rich country research agendas are shifting In particular they are no longer as interested in simple productivity enhancement Dietary patterns and other priorities change as incomes increase

Food security concerns are still pervasive among poor people predominantly in poor countries. In rich countries we see a declining emphasis on enhancing the production of staple foods and an increasing emphasis on enhancing certain attributes of food such as growing demand for processed and so called functional foods and on food production systems such as organic farming, humane livestock production systems, localized food sources and fair trade coffee. In addition to growing differences between rich and poor countries in consumer demand for innovation, research agendas may diverge because of differences in producer and processor demands. Farmers in rich countries are demanding high technology inputs that often are not as relevant for subsistence agriculture such as precision farming technology or other capital intensive methods. As well as differences in value adding processes to serve consumer demands, differences in farm production technologies are emerging to serve the evolving agribusiness demands for farm products with specific attributes for particular food, feed, energy, medical or industrial applications. The purpose of this volume is to document the changing institutions and investments in agricultural R D in less developed countries in part to form a companion volume to Paying for Agricultural Productivity by providing a more complete global picture of the issues.

MacLean, 1989 China's Reform and New Urbanization Yining Li, Zhiqiang Cheng, 2021-11-09 This book presents a study of China's new urbanization which is one of the country's major economic issues and embodies the characteristics of its economic development. Professor Yining Li proposed the framework and wrote the first article. Under Li's guidance other articles were written by researchers at the Guanghua School of Management Peking University. In the central government development plan urbanization is the main force stimulating domestic demand. And after more than 10 years of high speed urbanization process the change from simple urbanization to the new urbanization is an inevitable development direction. This book covers many crucial urbanization topics that directly affect China's reform. A History of Farming Systems Research Michael P. Collinson, 2000 This book provides a detailed history of farming systems research (FSR). While it includes the application of FSR to developed country agriculture its main focus is on FSR in its original role with small scale resource poor farmers in less developed countries. There are some 40 contributions from nearly 50 contributors from 20 countries illustrating both the diversity and yet the coherence of FSR. The five parts of the book cover 1 FSR understanding farmers and their farming FSR origins and perspectives understanding farming systems 2 the applications of farming systems research FSR in technology choice and development FSR in extension and policy formulation 3 institutional commitment to FSR FSR some institutional experiences in national agricultural research
