Topic: Culture | Words: 282 | Pages: 1

The definitions of race and ethnicity seem to be often confused, and usually, the line between them blurs, and people do not use the terms correctly. At first, there was no difference between these two concepts, and I believed that race implies specific cultural features and characteristics. However, over time through considerable research and readings, I realized that it only defines the physical and biological aspects of the people (Blakemore, 2019). In turn, ethnicity determines the cultural side of the people and includes the traditions, customs, and common historical background (Blakemore, 2019). I always had a precise understanding of this term, although usually, I assigned the same characteristics to the race. Thus, the race is about the biological specifics, and ethnicity has the cultural and historical context underneath it.

Despite the fact that both race and ethnicity are deeply interconnected and extremely important in defining human nature from a social perspective, it is impossible to separate one from another, but some have more power and influence in society. While race is associated with biological features, it is related to the supposed cultural background that the representatives of a certain race might have. However, it is not entirely accurate, and often it is more complicated than it may seem at first. For instance, Asian people can be born in European countries and among the European traditions and, despite their physical characteristics, hardly have something in common with their origins. It eventually will determine the person more since they learned from the specific culture that may not match their race according to the common assumptions. Therefore, ethnicity is more important and strongly

Working with the Mentally Disordered Offender in the Community Phillip J. Vaughan, Douglas Badger, 2013-12-20 In the past forensic psychiatry has been a sub speciality of general psychiatry without its own separate identity However since the mid 1980s there has been a growing interest in the application of community care principles to mentally disordered offenders A new set of attitudes have developed which have enabled the mentally disordered offender to emerge from relative institutional obscurity to a much higher profile in the community Although numerically small in relation to the general psychiatric population forensic patients tend to attract the public s attention by virtue of their greater propensity for troublesome behaviour Such a group needs expert community support in order to maintain an acceptable public face Unfortunately these developments have outstripped the creation of training opportunities for community staff charged with their support and supervision Most community practitioners have had to learn on the job with inadequate support and supervision from senior staff who often have less direct experience of working with this client group than themselves Just such a situation prompted the authors in 1990 to establish a module on Working with Mentally Disordered Offenders in the Community as part of an MA in Social Work at the University of Reading As the course developed it became clear that the topic and content had equal application to other community professionals working in the field
