Political and Social Thought in Africa Sharawy, Helmi, 2015-03-02 The essays collected together in this book reflect the author's varied experiences in the realms of politics and social struggle he notes that they cannot be separated from his other experiences in his country Egypt over the years These experiences extend from popular culture or folklore through the wider political world of African liberation politics to the Committee for the Defense of National Culture This book is like a long trip through African culture from the 1950s to the beginning of the 21st century These essays will most likely provoke a lot of memories sweet and bitter with maybe the bitter ones as the more lasting The author notes that it appears as if the only relationship that seems to have mattered for a long time for the Egyptians with the rest of Africa was the river Nile which joins the country to ten other countries while a vast desert stands in between Such separation ignores the ancient relations between Pharaonic Egypt and the rest of Africa and the role of Egypt in supporting many liberation movements on the continent The author has set himself some tough questions in this book Is it legitimate today to use race to subdivide the African continent Can this moreover be simply done as if race is ahistorical or an idealistic concept of identities Or are we going to talk about Arabism in Egypt Libya or Maghreb as if it were an identity gained with the advent of the Arabs implying that these were lands with no people a sort of No Man's Land Or was this a fragile space that could not confront the invading empire Or will Arabism equate with Bantuism or negroism sometimes and Hausa and Swahili cultures at other times These are the types of issues that Helmi Sharawy examines in this very important book Experiences that inform this book began with the author's first encounter in March 1956 with some African youths who were in Cairo for higher studies or as representatives of liberation movements with whom he worked as an intermediary with the Egyptian national state which work left on him an everlasting impression

Modernity and the Jews in Western Social Thought Chad Alen Goldberg, 2017-05-22 In the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries prominent social thinkers in France Germany and the United States sought to understand the modern world taking shape around them Although they worked in different national traditions and emphasized different features of modern society they repeatedly invoked Jews as a touchstone for defining modernity and national identity in a context of rapid social change In Modernity and the Jews in Western Social Thought Chad Alan Goldberg brings us a major new study of Western social thought through the lens of Jews and Judaism In France where antisemites decried the French Revolution as the Jewish Revolution mile Durkheim challenged depictions of Jews as agents of revolutionary subversion or counterrevolutionary reaction When German thinkers such as Karl Marx Georg Simmel Werner Sombart and Max Weber debated the relationship of the Jews to modern industrial capitalism they reproduced in secularized form cultural assumptions derived from Christian theology In the United States William Thomas Robert Park and their students conceived the modern city and its new modes of social organization in part by reference to the Jewish immigrants concentrating there In all three countries social thinkers invoked real or purported differences between Jews and gentiles to elucidate key dualisms of modern social thought The Jews thus became an intermediary through which social thinkers discerned in a roundabout fashion the nature problems and trajectory of their own wider societies Goldberg rounds out his fascinating study by proposing a novel explanation for why Jews were such an important cultural reference point He suggests a rethinking of previous scholarship on Orientalism Occidentalism and European perceptions of America arguing that history extends into the present with the Jews and now the Jewish state continuing to serve as an intermediary for self reflection in the twenty first century

Transcending Modernity with Relational Thinking Pierpaolo Donati, 2021-03-30 The Open Access version of this book available at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com/books/e/9781003146698> has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 license This book explores the ways in which social relations are profoundly changing modern society arguing that constituting a reality of their own social relations will ultimately lead to a new form of society an aftermodern or relational society Drawing on the thought of Simmel it extends the idea that society consists essentially of social relations in order to make sense of the operation of dichotomous forces in society and to examine the emergence of a third in the morphogenetic processes Through a realist and critical relational sociology which allows for the fact that human beings are both internal and external to social relations and therefore to society the author shows how we are moving towards a new trans modern society one that calls into question the guiding ideas of Western modernity such as the notion of linear progression that science and technology are the decisive factors of human development and that culture can entirely supplant nature As such it will appeal to sociologists social theorists economists political scientists and social philosophers with interests in relational thought critical realism and social transformation

Margaret Mead Kate Maguire, 2015-02-27 This book makes a case for Margaret Mead's contributions to education discourses which in retrospect appear visionary and profoundly democratic non judgemental and transdisciplinary and for their relevance for education today at primary secondary and tertiary levels Mead combined her substantial skills and knowledge as a linguist anthropologist and psychologist to draw attention to the primary role of culture and society in identity formation privileging against sterner perspectives the idea that the conditions that support the emergence of balanced personalities able to contribute to society and to progress themselves as individuals starts with observation of self before that of others This observation of and reflection on self was for her a necessary demonstration of transparency while close observation of others was an act of love much as the artist contemplates his/her subject that dissolved negative differences of culture belief and status
