Co-Production and Public Service Management Victor Pestoff, 2018-10-03 This volume compiles a dozen essays by one of the most prolific proponents of co production as a solution for many of the challenges facing public services and democratic governance at the outset of the 21st Century Co production is considered a partnership between citizens and public service providers that is essential for meeting a growing number of social challenges since neither the government nor citizens can solve them on their own. These challenges include among other things improving the efficiency and effectiveness of public services in times of financial strain, increasing the legitimacy of the public sector after decades of questioning its ability with the spread of New Public Management, promoting social integration and cultural pluralism in increasingly diverse societies when millions of refugees and immigrants are on the move, tackling the threat of burgeoning populism following the rise of anti-immigrant and anti-global parties in many countries in recent years, and finally finding viable solutions for meeting the growing needs of aging populations in many parts of the world. This volume addresses issues related to the successful development and implementation of a policy shift toward greater citizen participation in the design and delivery of the services they depend on in their daily lives and greater citizen involvement in resolving these tenacious problems facilitated by the active support of governments across the globe. Moreover, it explores participatory public service management that empowers the front-line staff providing public services. Together with users, citizens they can insure the democratic governance of public service provision.

Britain's Cities Michael Pacione, 2002-11-01 Uneven distribution of life is a dominant feature of the city. Major social, economic and spatial divisions are apparent in terms of income and wealth, health, crime, housing and employment. This text offers an introduction to current processes of urban restructuring, geographies of division and contemporary conditions within the city. The geography of Britain's cities is the outcome of interaction between a host of public and private economic, social and political forces operating at a variety of spatial scales from the global to the local. A deeper understanding of the nature of urban division and of the problems of and prospects for local people and places in urban Britain must be grounded in an appreciation of the structural forces, processes and contextual factors which condition local urban geographies. This book combines structural and local-level perspectives to illuminate the complex geography of socio-spatial division within urban Britain. It combines conceptual and empirical analyses from researchers in the field.

Preventing Classroom Disruption David Coulby, Tim Harper, 2012 There has always been considerable debate about the best solutions to deal with disruptive behaviour in schools. On the one hand is the strategy of segregating disruptive pupils while on the other is a commitment to keeping such pupils in the ordinary school. This book advocates the latter philosophy and examines the best ways of coping with the problem. These concern both teacher skills and school organisational flexibility. In addition, the authors propose the provision of a support team whereby local authorities can help schools, teachers and children with problems of disruption without setting up 'sin bins'. Change is thus shown to be possible at three levels teachers headteachers and local authorities Detailed illustrative case material is presented throughout the book Routledge Library Editions: Education Mini-Set O Teaching and Learning 14 vols

Various,2021-12-02 Originally published between 1973 and 1993 the 14 books in this set discuss a number of themes such as policy practice and evaluation in schools dealing with disruptive behaviour issues regarding the teaching of arts and sciences ethnographic studies of life in primary and secondary schools and critical events in teaching and learning
