Military Assistance William H. Mott IV, 1999-10-30 This work provides a theoretical and historical examination of the relationship between provision of military assistance and success in achieving donor aims Eight case studies which include the American Revolution the Napoleonic Wars and the Vietnam War are examined to assess four prominent features of the donor recipient relationship the convergence of donor and recipient aims donor control commitment of donor military forces and coherence of donor policies and strategies As an essential part of the expanding body of multidisciplinary international scholarship this book links history and theory to policy and narrows the gap between economics political science and military strategy Each chapter refines the relevant features of the observed donor recipient relationships into a pattern for comparison with other episodes The final chapter collects the observations compares them and develops a set of uniformities that suggest a prototypical successful donor recipient relationship suitable for direct application as a policy paradigm or for theoretical investigation Mott suggests that both donor and recipient governments can use military assistance as a deliberate instrument of national policy and military strategy to achieve national aims A Western relations with and perceptions of China in the first half of the twentieth century In this ground breaking book Ariane Kn sel examines how China was portrayed in political debates and the media in Britain the USA and Switzerland between 1900 and 1950 By focusing on the political economic cultural and social context that led to the construction of the particular images of China in each country the author demonstrates that national interests anxieties and issues influenced the way China was framed and resulted in different portrayals of China in each country The author s meticulous analysis of a vast amount of newspaper and magazine articles commentaries editorials cartoons and newsreels that have previously not been studied before also focuses on the transnational circulation of images of China While previous publications have dealt with the occurrence of the Yellow Peril and Red Menace in particular countries Framing China reveals that these images were interpreted differently in every nation because they both reflected and contributed to the discursive construction of nationhood in each country and were influenced by domestic issues cultural values pre existing stereotypes pressure groups and geopolitical aspirations China Watch John King Fairbank, 1987 America s top China watcher the renowned pandit of modern Chinese history here provides an unrivaled overview of revolutionary China and Chinese American relations His reviews and critical commentary scrutinize our always fascinated often puzzled attitude toward this newly emergent superpower John Fairbank distinguishes two major motifs in recent Chinese American connections the American expectation of highly profitable trade and investment which so far have not materialized and the deep rooted missionary impulse to give the Chinese the best of our culture which includes our efforts to promote human rights The possibility of grafting our ideas of individual endeavor and God given prerogatives onto two thousand years of Confucianism with its emphasis on duty and collective harmony seems remote In contrast the outlook for mutually enriching economic dealings is much brighter Yet Fairbank cautions that we are dealing with a huge and disoriented nation struggling to enter the modern world with its own cultural identity intact and at least in the current period with its Communist Party in power Confucian tenets still prevail theory and practice are a unity policies are a form of conduct manifesting one s character and attacks on policy equal attacks on the ruling party These writings concern China in the mind s eye of America as it is interpreted though the works of American merchants diplomats missionaries and reporters observing China s travail of revolution For generalist scholar and sage alike China Watch offers many insights
