Steaming East

Sir Norman Lockyer

Steaming East:

Steaming East Sarah Searight, 1991 At the beginning of the 19th century it took months to get from England to India clear at the other end of the Empire Better communications were imperative This is the story of how it was done laboriously stubbornly sometimes misguided by several generations of entrepreneurs engineers inventors and military men first with steamships and then by railway It is a story full of colourful anecdotes and even more colourful characters from Captain Charles Chesney who tried and failed to establish a steamship route on the Euphrates River to the founder of the Orient Express who rejoiced in the name of Georges Nagelmackers to Major James Buster Browne builder of a rail line across a Northwest Indian desert so inhospitable that 32 soldiers died there of heat stroke when their train broke down The account spans roughly a century from the first tentative use of steam engines in ships to the decline of the great age of railways following World War I

McCracken's Practical Navigation John James McCracken, 1921 Global Muslims in the Age of Steam and Print James L. Gelvin, Nile Green, 2014 The second half of the nineteenth century marks a watershed in human history Railroads linked remote hinterlands with cities overland and undersea cables connected distant continents New and accessible print technologies made the wide dissemination of ideas possible oceangoing steamers carried goods to faraway markets and enabled the greatest long distance migrations in recorded history In this volume leading scholars of the Islamic world recount the enduring consequences these technological economic social and cultural revolutions had on Muslim communities from North Africa to South Asia the Indian Ocean and China Drawing on a multiplicity of approaches and genres from commodity history to biography to social network theory the essays in Global Muslims in the Age of Steam and Print offer new and diverse perspectives on a transnational community in an era of global transformation

Power over Peoples Daniel R. Headrick, 2012-06-28 A major history of technology and Western conquest For six hundred years the nations of Europe and North America have periodically attempted to coerce invade or conquer other societies They have relied on their superior technology to do so yet these technologies have not always guaranteed success Power over Peoples examines Western imperialism's complex relationship with technology from the first Portuguese ships that ventured down the coast of Africa in the 1430s to America's conflicts in the Middle East today Why did the sailing vessels that gave the Portuguese a century long advantage in the Indian Ocean fail to overcome Muslim galleys in the Red Sea Why were the same weapons and methods that the Spanish used to conquer Mexico and Peru ineffective in Chile and Africa Why didn't America's overwhelming air power assure success in Iraq and Afghanistan In Power over Peoples Daniel Headrick traces the evolution of Western technologies from muskets and galleons to jet planes and smart bombs and sheds light on the environmental and social factors that have brought victory in some cases and unforeseen defeat in others He shows how superior technology translates into greater power over nature and sometimes even other peoples yet how technological superiority is no guarantee of success in imperialist ventures because the technology only delivers results in a specific environment or because the society being attacked responds in unexpected ways Breathtaking in scope Power over Peoples is a revealing history of technological innovation its promise and limitations and its central role in the rise and fall of empire Some images inside the book are unavailable due to digital copyright restrictions Some Account of Steam Navigation in New England Francis Boardman Crowninshield Bradlee,1920 Pursuing the Whale John Atkins Cook,1926 Narrative of whaling voyages in Bering Chukchi and Beaufort seas after bowhead and sperm whales with useful material on handling of the catch Examples in Mathematics, Mechanics, Navigation and Nautical Astronomy, Heat and Steam, and Electricity, for the Use of Junior Officers Afloat James Alfred Ewing,1911 Nature Sir Norman Lockyer,1879
