Hutton, 2016-11-09 This volume presents a comprehensive analysis of the Confucian thinker Xunzi and his work which shares the same name It features a variety of disciplinary perspectives and offers divergent interpretations The disagreements reveal that as with any other classic the Xunzi provides fertile ground for readers It is a source from which they have drawn and will continue to draw different lessons In more than 15 essays the contributors examine Xunzi's views on topics such as human nature ritual music ethics and politics They also look at his relations with other thinkers in early China and consider his influence in East Asian intellectual history A number of important Chinese scholars in the Song dynasty 960-1279 CE sought to censor the Xunzi They thought that it offered a heretical and impure version of Confucianism As a result they directed study away from the Xunzi This has diminished the popularity of the work However the essays presented here help to change this situation They open the text's riches to Western students and scholars The book also highlights the substantial impact the Xunzi has had on thinkers throughout history even on those who were critical of it Overall readers will gain new insights and a deeper understanding of this important but often neglected thinker The Christian's Pathway of Power, 1876 Pneumatology and the Christian-Buddhist Dialogue Amos Yong, 2012-07-26 Recent thinking in Christian theology of religions has taken a pneumatological turn which asks how the doctrine of the Holy Spirit can contribute to the interreligious dialogue and to the emerging discourse of comparative theology Pneumatology and the Christian Buddhist Dialogue Does the Spirit Blow through the Middle Way tests the viability of this approach as applied to the Christian Buddhist dialogue Various Christian and Buddhist traditions are compared and contrasted within a pneumatological framework Is the Holy Spirit to be found along the Buddha's middle way Some Christians say yes while others demur The thesis of this volume is that such a pneumatological perspective opens up possibilities for the deepening and transformation of Christian theology in the religiously plural world of the twenty first century The Friend ,1882

Cultivating Perfection Louis Komjathy, 2007-09-30 This important work focuses on early Quanzhen Complete Perfection Daoism a twelfth century Daoist religious movement and subsequent monastic order Emphasis in this first study to approach Quanzhen from a comparative religious studies perspective is placed on the complex interplay among views of self specific training regimens and the types of experiences that were expected to follow from dedicated praxis On the basis of historical contextualization and textual analysis it is demonstrated that in its formative and incipient organized phases Quanzhen was a Daoist religious community consisting of a few renunciants dedicated to religious praxis The study proper is followed by a complete annotated translation of a text attributed to the founder which represents one of only two early Quanzhen texts translated to date Subsequent appendices address issues of dating and contents of the early textual corpus as well as technical Quanzhen religious terminology

Effortless Action Edward Slingerland, 2007-05-24 This book presents a systematic account of the role of the personal spiritual ideal of wu wei literally no doing but better rendered as effortless action in early Chinese thought Edward Slingerland s analysis shows that wu wei represents the most general of a set of conceptual metaphors having to do with a state of effortless ease and unself consciousness This concept of effortlessness he contends serves as a common ideal for both Daoist and Confucian thinkers He also argues that this concept contains within itself a conceptual tension that motivates the development of early Chinese thought the so called paradox of wu wei or the question of how one can consciously try not to try Methodologically this book represents a preliminary attempt to apply the contemporary theory of conceptual metaphor to the study of early Chinese thought Although the focus is upon early China both the subject matter and methodology have wider implications The subject of wu wei is relevant to anyone interested in later East Asian religious thought or in the so called virtue ethics tradition in the West Moreover the technique of conceptual metaphor analysis along with the principle of embodied realism upon which it is based provides an exciting new theoretical framework and methodological tool for the study of comparative thought comparative religion intellectual history and even the humanities in general Part of the purpose of this work is thus to help introduce scholars in the humanities and social sciences to this methodology and provide an example of how it may be applied to a particular sub field
