

MARKETING

BASIC CONCEPTS

- Definition of marketing:
 - All activities directed toward making an exchange intended to satisfy human needs or wants
 - Process of establishing and maintaining mutually beneficial relationships with stakeholders of the company to facilitate exchanges

WHAT IS MARKETING?

- A market is the aggregate of all people or organizations that have a need for, or want, a product or class of products and have the money to pay for them. It is sometimes used to mean a place, real or virtual, where buyers and sellers meet to buy or sell goods.
- The classical marketing concept is a philosophy that guides the attitude of everyone in a firm to stimulate and satisfy the needs and wants of every customer.
- Marketing includes conducting, analyzing, and using market research.
- Marketing efforts span all activities related to delivering a product or service to a consumer. They are composed of product development, design, pricing, distribution, branding, advertising, and public relations.

General Model of Marketing

Foundations → Target markets → Product development strategy → Pricing → Channels and logistics → Integrated communities

THE ROLE OF MARKETING

- Establish guides for ethical behavior in marketing:
 - Advertise and sell safe, healthy products.

TARGET MARKETS

- These markets must be defined by marketing so that the business may focus on those selected.
- The basic markets are the total market, market segments, and market niches, in decreasing order of size. These apply to:

MARKET SEGMENTATION

- Markets may be segmented by strategy and product characteristics, and hence, by characteristics of the buyer.
- A strategy of product differentiation is used in which buyers desire differentiation of form, price, and service.

- Examples of audience segments include differentiation by:
 - Demographics: Age, income, geographic location, marital status, and education level

 - Lifestyle: Preferences, activities, and media usage
