A Study of Shelley Pelham Edgar, 2015-07-11 Excerpt from A Study of Shelley With Special Reference to His Nature Poetry Professor Dowden in his Life of Shelley refers to Shelley's early indifference for natural beauty. In the midst of the mountains of Cwm Elan in 1811 Shelley writes to his friend Hogg: "This is most divine scenery but all very dull, stale, flat, and unprofitable; indeed the place is a very great bore." The poet in Shelley at this time was trammelled and taken in the toils by the psychologist and metaphysician. Life of Shelley I 165 In the summer of 1811 his delight in mountain and vale and stream was tracked and hunted down and done to death by his passion for psychological analysis. This country of Wales writing to Miss Hitchener is exceedingly grand: rocks piled on each other to tremendous heights; rivers formed into cataracts by their projections; and valleys clothed with woods present an appearance of enchantment. But why do they enchant? Why is it more affecting than a plain? It cannot be innate; is it acquired? Thus does knowledge lose all the pleasure which involuntarily arises by attempting to arrest the fleeting phantom as it passes. Vain attempt like the chemist's: either it evaporates under our observation; it flies from all but the slaves of passion and sickly sensibility who will not analyze a feeling. And again Nature is here marked with the most impressive characters of loveliness and grandeur. Once I was tremulously alive to tones and scenes; the habit of analyzing feelings I fear does not agree with this. It is spontaneous and when it becomes subject to consideration ceases to exist. Life of Shelley I 167 I am more astonished at the grandeur of the scenery letter to Hogg than I expected. I do not now much regard it. I have other things to think of.
