Teaching As A Reflective Practice The German Didaktik Tradition:

Teaching As A Reflective Practice Ian Westbury, Stefan Hopmann, Kurt Riquarts, 2012-08-06 This volume presents a mix of translations of classical and modern papers from the German Didaktik tradition newly prepared essays by German scholars and practitioners writing from within the tradition and interpretive essays by U S scholars It brings this tradition which virtually dominated German curricular thought and teacher education until the 1960s when American curriculum theory entered Germany and which is now experiencing a renaissance to the English speaking world where it has been essentially unknown The intent is to capture in one volume the core at least of the tradition of Didaktik and to communicate its potential relevance to English language curricularists and teacher educators It introduces a theoretical tradition which although very different in almost every respect from those we know offers a set of approaches that suggest ways of thinking about problems of reflection on curricular and teaching praxis the core focus of the tradition which the editors believe are accessible to North American readers with appropriate translation These ways of thinking and related praxis are very relevant to notions such as reflective teaching and the discourse on teachers as professionals By raising the possibility that the new tradition of Didaktik can be highly suggestive for thinking through issues related to a number of central ideas within contemporary discourse and for exploring the implications of these ideas for both teacher education and for a curriculum theory appropriate to these new contexts for theorizing this book opens up a gold mine of theoretical and practical possibilities

Beyond Fragmentation: Didactics, Learning and Teaching in Europe Meinert Meyer, Brian Hudson, 2011-05-30 There is great diversity in teacher education systems and approaches to learning and teaching practice across Europe even though the practical everyday problems of the various national education systems may be very similar Against this background in the field of research on didactics learning and teaching it is important to overcome fragmentation and to find common ground In this book the editors demonstrate how far we have come over recent years in advancing research in the field which has the ultimate aim of improving learning and teaching The editors recognise the diverging national and local practices as a starting point in searching for common ground and in creating shared understandings The book is organised in six parts with 26 chapters in which the authors examine whether there is a paradigmatic shift from teaching to learning take a closer look at various teacher education models and their empirical basis discuss the importance of subject didactics curriculum work and lesson planning and analyse the impact of Information and Communication Technologies on didactical design Finally they relate the empirical findings to theory construction and offer proposals to further advance this vital field by increasing levels of international co operation

Designing for Learning in a Networked World Nina Bonderup Dohn, 2018-02-28 Designing for Learning in a Networked World provides answers to the following questions what skills are required for living in a networked world how can educators design for learning these skills and what role can and should networked learning play in a networked world It discusses central theoretical concepts and draws on current debates about competences necessary to thrive in contemporary society The book presents detailed analyses of skills needed and investigates the question of how one can design for learning in specific empirical cases ranging in academic level from preschool to university teaching The book clarifies the different conceptions of design within the educational field and offers a framework for thinking critically about instances of networked learning It analyses digital and Computational Literacy and discusses participatory skills for learning in a networked world Examples of specific empirical cases include teaching programming to students not necessarily intrinsically motivated to learn facilitation of a participatory public in the library and designs for children's transition from day care to primary school discussed as a matter of networked contexts Engaging thoughtfully with the question of 21st century skills this book will be vital reading to scholars researchers and students within the fields of education networked learning learning technology and the learning sciences digital literacy design for learning and library studies

International Perspectives on School Settings, Education Policy and Digital Strategies Annika Wilmers, Sieglinde Jornitz, 2021-02-15 An exchange on education ideas has shaped the transatlantic discourse in education for a long time Over the past two decades education science has increasingly become networked internationally Since 2015 the Office for International Cooperation in Education at DIPF Leibniz Institute for Research and Information in Education has organized international sessions on education research at the Annual Meetings of the American Educational Research Association thus providing a floor for transatlantic exchange on current research topics The volume gives an overview of the transatlantic activities in education research with regard to these sessions representing a collection of topics ranging from school development over the use of large scale assessment and digital data in education to questions related to migration and public education or the economization of education At the same time the volume offers a reflection on the assets and obstacles of international exchange

Curriculum Studies as an International Conversation

Daniel F. Johnson-Mardones, 2018-04-09 Examining Curriculum Studies from an international perspective this book focuses on the relations between the Anglo Saxon and Latin American educational traditions Informed by William F Pinar's conceptualization of curriculum as currere Johnson Mardones reconsiders curriculum as an international conversation and advances an intercultural dialogue among educational traditions to put forth a more comprehensive and inclusive theory of curriculum Moving beyond the Anglo Saxon space and into the Global South Johnson Mardones brings in his own non Western educational experience to the center of this inquiry and situates cosmopolitanism as a necessary but complex component of Curriculum Studies

Encyclopedia of the Sciences of Learning Norbert M. Seel, 2011-10-05 Over the past century educational psychologists and researchers have posited many theories to explain how individuals learn i e how they acquire organize and deploy knowledge and skills The 20th century can be considered the century of psychology on learning and related fields of interest such as motivation cognition metacognition etc and it is fascinating to see the various mainstreams of learning remembered and forgotten over the 20th century and note that basic assumptions of early theories survived several paradigm shifts of psychology and epistemology Beyond folk psychology and its naive theories of learning psychological learning theories can be grouped into some basic categories such as behaviorist learning theories connectionist learning theories cognitive learning theories constructivist learning theories and social learning theories Learning theories are not limited to psychology and related fields of interest but rather we can find the topic of learning in various disciplines such as philosophy and epistemology education information science biology and as a result of the emergence of computer technologies especially also in the field of computer sciences and artificial intelligence As a consequence machine learning struck a chord in the 1980s and became an important field of the learning sciences in general As the learning sciences became more specialized and complex the various fields of interest were widely spread and separated from each other as a consequence even presently there is no comprehensive overview of the sciences of learning or the central theoretical concepts and vocabulary on which researchers rely The Encyclopedia of the Sciences of Learning provides an up to date broad and authoritative coverage of the specific terms mostly used in the sciences of learning and its related fields including relevant areas of instruction pedagogy cognitive sciences and especially machine learning and knowledge engineering This modern compendium will be an indispensable source of information for scientists educators engineers and technical staff active in all fields of learning More specifically the Encyclopedia provides fast access to the most relevant theoretical terms provides up to date broad and authoritative coverage of the most important theories within the various fields of the learning sciences and adjacent sciences and communication technologies supplies clear and precise explanations of the theoretical terms cross references to related entries and up to date references to important research and publications The Encyclopedia also contains biographical entries of individuals who have substantially contributed to the sciences of learning the entries are written by a distinguished panel of researchers in the various fields of the learning sciences

Blackboards and Bootstraps David Hamilton, Benjamin Zufiaurre, 2014-02-05 Blackboards and Bootstraps

Revisioning education and schooling contributes to an international conversation about public education that in recent decades has been attenuated if not silenced by advocates of neoliberalism marketisation and neocorporatism Written for a wide audience this book is not a manifesto for the twenty first century It is more of an invitation than a blueprint In drawing a distinction between education and schooling it identifies recovers and explores many ideas about education and schooling that are no less important to the practice of the present than they were to the pedagogues of the past The introduction questions the role of schooling in the future trajectory of spaceship earth The remainder of the book considers these questions by revisiting a range of ideas that underpin current practice It launches itself by returning to the sixteenth century a time when the organisation and conduct of modern schooling took shape around a new set of terms syllabus class curriculum and didactics that in their Latin forms not only became prominent in the international educational lexicon but also survived into the twentieth century By the First World War there was an international awareness that schooling is not the same as education Schooling originally for the land owning mercantile and commercial elites of the sixteenth century had only partially engaged with the visions of democratic schooling voiced in the eighteenth century Enlightenment and the subsequent extension of suffrage and national and sexual liberation movements Impressed by the universalistic achievements of the Renaissance and the Enlightenment the authors raise the prospect of a new educational humanism in the globalised world of the twenty first century
