Teaching Young Children: Choices In Theory And Practice Mac Naughton, Glenda, Williams, Gillian, 2008-11-01 This book presents early childhood students and staff with a broad and diverse range of teaching techniques to support children's learning. It examines 26 techniques ranging from simple ones such as describing and listening to more complex methods such as deconstruction and scaffolding. The strategies selected are derived from the best current research knowledge about how young children learn. A detailed evaluation of each strategy enables childcare staff, early childhood teachers, and students to expand their repertoire of teaching strategies and to critically evaluate their own teaching in early childhood settings. Vignettes and examples show how early childhood staff use the techniques to support children's learning and help to bring the discussion of each technique to life. Revised and updated in light of the latest research, new features include Coverage of the phonics debate Addition of ICT content Questions for further discussion Revision to the chapter on problem solving Updated referencing throughout Teaching Young Children is key reading for students and experienced early childhood staff working in diverse settings with young children Who Am I in the Lives of Children? Stephanie Feeney, Doris Christensen, 1979 Handbook of Curriculum Theory, Research, and Practice Peter Pericles Trifonas, Susan Jagger, 2024-02-22 This Handbook paints a portrait of what the international field of curriculum entails in theory, research, and practice. It represents the field accurately and comprehensively by preserving the individual voices of curriculum theorists, researchers, and practitioners in relation to the ideas, rules, and principles that have evolved out of the history of curriculum as theory, research, and practice dealing with specific and general issues. Due to its approach to both specific and general curriculum issues, the chapters in this volume vary with respect to scope. Some engage the purposes and politics of schooling in general. Others focus on particular topics such as evaluation, the use of instructional objectives, or curriculum integration. They illustrate recurrent themes and historical antecedents and the curricular debates arising from and grounded in epistemological traditions. Furthermore, the issues raised in the handbook cut across a variety of subject areas and levels of education and how curricular research and practice have developed over time. This includes the epistemological foundations of dominant ideas in the field around theory, research, and practice that have led to marginalization based on race, class, gender, sexuality, ethnicity, age, religion, and ability. The book argues that basic curriculum issues extend well beyond schooling to include the concerns of anyone interested in how people come to acquire the knowledge, skills, and values that they do in relation to subjectivity and experience An Introduction to Young Children With Delays and Disabilities Richard M.
