Truesdell,2003 High Tech Start Up, Revised

And Updated John L. Nesheim,2000-09-22 This revised and updated edition of Nesheim s underground Silicon Valley bestseller incorporates twenty three case studies of successful start ups including tables of wealth showing how much money founders and investors realized from each venture The phenomenal success of the initial public offerings IPOs of many new internet companies obscures the fact that fewer than six out of 1 million business plans submitted to venture capital firms will ever reach the IPO stage Many fail according to start up expert John Nesheim because the entrepreneurs did not have access to the invaluable lessons that come from studying the real world venture experiences of successful companies Now they do Acclaimed by entrepreneurs the world over this practical handbook is filled with hard to find information and guidance covering every key phase of a start up from idea to IPO how to create a winning business plan how to value the firm how venture capitalists work how they make their money where to find alternative sources of funding how to select a good lawyer and how to protect intellectual property Nesheim aims to improve the odds of success for first time high tech entrepreneurs and offers an insider s perspective from firsthand experience on one of the toughest challenges they face convincing venture capitalists or investment banks to provide financing This complete classic reference tool is essential reading for first time high tech entrepreneurs and entrepreneurs already involved in a start up who want to increase their chances of success to rise to the top Fostering Technology Absorption in Southern African Enterprises The World Bank,2011-09-16 While economic theory considers technological progress to be a key factor for sustained long term economic growth and job creation technology absorption is particularly an important driver for catch up growth This study seeks to identify channels of technology transfer and absorption for Southern African enterprises constraints to greater technology absorption and discuss policy options open to governments and the private sector in light of relevant international experience It has been done based on sector and enterprise case studies carried in four countries South Africa Mauritius Lesotho and Namibia This study uses a combination of econometric and in depth case study analyses to investigate the presence of specific channels of absorption and the various constraints that the firms face to effectively absorb this technology There is evidence of learning by exporting and spillovers from FDI underscoring the importance of trade and FDI as important channels of absorption The study finds that four countries while open to trade and FDI face a number of constraints that inhibit them from maximizing the economic benefits from technology absorption These constraints include a major skills mismatch insufficient research and development and ineffective industry research linkages While outlining broad policy directions in four areas namely increasing skills supply fostering learning through trade increasing domestic spillovers from FDI and incentivizing greater firm level research and development it lays out some priority areas for each of the four countries We hope that the issues discussed and the dialogue initiated during the course of this study would lend itself to policy design to foster technology absorption with a view to higher growth and job creation in this highly globalized world

Characteristics of Successful Technology CEOs Dora Vell, 2009 This Vell research report on Characteristics of Successful CEOs investigates whether common perceptions regarding the predictors of CEO success are valid The research uses data about public technology products companies in New England with over 100 M in revenues and their CEOs Our research examines the correlation or lack of between a company's performance and the CEO's education experience tenure age reliance on an independent Chair and whether the CEO came in as internal promotion vs external hire Not unexpectedly technology companies differ from other companies in many significant ways Although we work extensively with technology CEOs some of the findings were surprising to us For example the predominance of founders among companies with revenues between 100 M 1 B was unexpected Each topic has three sections The Patterns Detected section summarizes the underlying distribution of our data set e g the percent of CEOs who were founders by company size The So Where Were the Differences section reports the correlation between corporate performance and the relevant characteristics e g founders vs non founders The Key Take Aways section highlights the most striking conclusions
