The Development of Exegesis in Early Islam Herbert Berg, 2013-04-03 The most important debate in Islamic origins is that of the reliability of the lists of transmitters (isnads) that are said to guarantee the authenticity of the materials to which they are attached Many scholars have come to the conclusion that most traditions (hadiths) which claim to preserve the words and deeds of Muhammad and early Muslim scholars are spurious Other scholars defend hadiths and their isnads arguing for an early continuous written transmission of these materials The first purpose of this study is to summarize and critique the major positions on the issue of the authenticity of hadiths in general and exegetical hadiths in particular The second purpose is to devise a means of evaluating isnads that does not rely on circular arguments and to use it to determine if the hadiths in the Tafsir of al-Tabari attributed to Ibn Abbas are genuine

The First Dynasty of Islam G. R. Hawting, 2002-01-04 Gerald

Hawting's book has long been acknowledged as the standard introductory survey of this complex period in Arab and Islamic history. Now it is once more made available with the addition of a new introduction by the author which examines recent significant contributions to scholarship in the field. It is certain to be welcomed by students and academics alike. The Quest of the Historical Muhammad and Other Studies on Formative Islam Stephen J. Shoemaker, 2024-07-09. The lead essay in this book is the first effort to approach the historical figure of Muhammad in a manner comparable to the investigations that biblical scholars have made in the effort to recover the historical figure of Jesus. Using comparable methods and approaches, this study demonstrates that despite a widely held belief that Islam was born in the full light of history, we in fact know considerably less about both Muhammad and the beginnings of Islam than we do about the historical Jesus and the beginnings of Christianity. Also included are republications of four previously published essays dealing with such topics as the Qur'an's status as a late ancient biblical apocryphon, the relation between the Jerusalem Temple and the Holy House revered by the Qur'an, and the imminent eschatology of the Qur'an and the early Islamic tradition.

The Development of Early Sunnite Hadith Criticism Eirik Dickinson, 2001. This book examines the life and works of the important Sunnite hadith critic Ibn Abi al-Riz, 240-854/327-938, with emphasis on his famous Taqdim. This study defines his vision of the hadith critic and analyses the nature of hadith criticism.

The Book Mahesh, 2016-04-21. This book covers the teachings of a sixth-century religious leader whose followers constitute the second largest religious group in the world in the present age. The book is set as a first-person narrative where the Prophet quotes his own words and offers the rationale for many of the guidelines in the times when they were delivered, as also their validity in the present times. Many of those preachings which were very relevant to usher in much-needed socio-cultural changes in the desert tribes of those ancient times may seem to be archaic and out of place today when the world and society have seen much advancement and achieved scientific and technological progress. And yet, since they are believed to be the words of God delivered through His chosen messenger, the believers are in a constant intellectual crisis as they are unable to give them up totally nor are they able to accept them totally in the present context. It is this dilemma that is the thread running through the book where many of the guidelines are compared with guidelines on the same subjects contained in ancient scriptures from other world religions, most of which are more ancient than these sixth-century teachings. The reader is invited to read, analyse, and draw his own conclusions about these myriad topics which continue to interest and stimulate human curiosity and the quest for truth through all ages.
