

Strategies for Supervising Instruction

- Establish expectations with teachers and focus on important aspects of lesson preparation and also what they are being evaluated on
- Get into the classrooms as much as possible – lesson plans do not always mean that is what is happening in a classroom and if unannounced walkthroughs are used, you can disregard the dog and pony show
- Be a role model and do not ask your teachers to do anything you wouldn't be able to do yourself – extremely important with integrating technology and professional learning to improve practice
- Give meaningful/useful feedback in order for teachers to know you are not trying to catch them in a 'Gotcha' moment – feedback should always be used as a growth opportunity
- If delegation of supervision, make sure all parties observing clearly understand what is being checked and how to give constructive feedback
