

7 Ways to Teach Your Grade-Schooler Organization Skills

Ready to help your grade school child get organized? Here are some simple lessons to tackle first.

Lesson

1

Recognize “wants” vs. “needs.”

Goal: Sort out and prioritize what she wants to do vs. what she needs to do.

Example: Your child does homework first. Playing with friends comes later.

Lesson

2

Take one out, put one in.

Goal: Keep messes from becoming overwhelming.

Example: Your child has to put away what's already out when she wants to play with or use something new.

Lesson

3

Categorize, label and sort.

Goal: Keep things neat and orderly.

Example: Your child looks at toys, groceries or homework to figure out which things go together.

Lesson

4

Picture the day.

Goal: Know the order or events in the day.

Example: Your child plans out the day by drawing a picture of the day's schedule as a comic book.

Lesson

5

Make daily checklists.

Goal: Keep track of what needs to be done.

Example: Your child lists out things to do, checks off what's finished and transfers unfinished items to the next day's list.

Lesson

6

Keep a family calendar.

Goal: Plan for the future.

Example: Your child checks the calendar nightly to know what's happening tomorrow.

Lesson

7

Break big projects into smaller steps.

Goal: Make big projects easier to manage.

Example: Your child breaks a science project into steps—first coming up with an idea, then listing materials needed and gathering supplies before doing the experiment.
