Teaching Reading In The Secondary Schools:

Teaching Reading in Secondary Schools Geoff Dean, 2003 First Published in 2006 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company Reading in Secondary Content Areas Zhihui Fang, Mary Schleppegrell, 2008 What does it mean to teach reading in the context of the middle and high school classroom Don't students already know how to read by the time they get to secondary school And how can a busy teacher take time away from the packed curriculum of science history mathematics or language arts to teach reading This book presents a linguistic approach to teaching reading in different subjects an approach that focuses on language itself Central to this approach is a view that knowledge is constructed in and through language and that language changes with changes in knowledge As students move from elementary to secondary schools they encounter specialized knowledge and engage in new contexts of learning in all subjects This means that the language of secondary school learning is quite different from the language of the elementary years While in the elementary years the subject matter of reading materials is often close to students everyday life experiences the curriculum of secondary school deals with knowledge that is removed from students personal lives and everyday contexts The language that constructs this more specialized knowledge thus tends to be more abstract technical information laden and hierarchically organized than the more familiar and friendly language that students typically encounter during the elementary years Students need to develop specialized literacies literacy relevant to each content area as well as a critical literacy they can use across subject areas to engage with reflect on and assess specialized and advanced knowledge This functional language analysis approach is shown using actual secondary social studies science and math textbooks and using a literary text Teaching Reading in the Secondary Schools Geoff Dean, 2013-02-01 Being able to read well is one of the most important literacy requirements in our society It is fundamental to almost all secondary school subjects and the English programme in particular The new Key Stage 3 focus on teaching reading compels us to find exciting ways to engage young people with texts that they will continue with and develop themselves This book outlines several approaches to reading which challenge former classroom practices It is through these approaches that all students from reluctant boys to the most able of either gender can continue to grow as readers and develop their readiness to seek meaning in texts This second edition adds to the original ideas in Geoff Dean's first book and includes new methods of teaching reading including guided reading and using increased grammatical student knowledge Reading Strategies for Secondary School Teachers Lou E. Burmeister, 1974 Secondary School Reading Instruction Betty D. Roe, Barbara D. Stoodt, Paul Clay Burns, 1987 This book has been written primarily for secondary school content teachers those who are preparing for teacher certification and the experienced who wish to learn how to help their students read content assignments with more understanding The book uses introductory level information on reading instruction There is also useful information for reading specialists who work with content teachers or helping secondary students with reading difficulties and administrators who need to know about the reading needs of secondary school students in order to set appropriate policies The aim of this book is to equip secondary school classroom teachers with the tools to teach more efficiently by helping their students understand material better Teachers who can add improvement of reading skills to their toolkit will enhance their success in the classroom Teaching Reading Skills in Secondary Schools Arthur V. Olson, Wilbur S. Ames, 1972 Teaching Reading Skills in Secondary Schools Arthur V. Olson, 1970 Teaching Reading in the Secondary Content Area Classroom Sara L. Norton-Ejnik, 2011 Strategic teaching of reading occurs at the elementary level and students are expected to read to learn once they enter high school The majority of the nation's secondary students do not have all the requisite skills to read and learn from high school texts and materials and even drop out rates have been attributed to students inability to keep pace with the literacy skill demanded by the secondary curriculum No Child Left Behind legislation now mandates secondary school reading initiatives from high stakes testing to remediation Despite the national focus on secondary reading teachers in America's secondary schools are not teaching the skills and strategies necessary for their students to grow as readers and learn from what they read ACT 2007 Biancarosa Snow 2004 The study quantified Michigan's secondary content area teachers attitudes toward teaching reading and examined the relationship between those attitudes and predictor variables of content area level type of training in teaching reading degree level and degree of learner centeredness Data was collected from 191 male and female respondents via email link to a survey using the Otto Smith Inventory Scale to measure teacher attitudes toward teaching reading and a portion of the Learner Centered Battery Scale to measure the respondents learner centeredness Teacher respondents had generally positive attitudes toward teaching reading Math and science respondents had significantly lower attitude scores than English teachers Post bachelors training education correlated positively with teacher attitudes toward teaching reading A positive relationship existed between respondents learner centered beliefs and their attitudes toward teaching content area reading The data showed a negative relationship between non learner centered beliefs and the respondents score on the OSI Both correlations were significant at the .01 level According to the data the more learner centered a teacher the more positive her attitude toward content area reading instruction Conversely the stronger a teacher's non learner centered beliefs the more negative her attitude toward content area reading instruction The findings from this study provide important insights for designing inservice or post bachelors training programs to create learner centered belief systems and positive attitudes toward teaching content area instruction Secondary School Reading Allen Berger, H. Alan Robinson, 1982 A collection of current research related to reading instruction for the classroom teacher in the secondary school Strategies in Teaching Reading Robert Baird Shuman, 1978 RTI for Reading at the Secondary Level Deborah K. Reed, Jade Wexler, Sharon Vaughn, 2012-03-14 Grounded in the best current knowledge this book shows how to implement response to intervention RTI in middle and high school contexts Detailed guidelines are presented for teaching reading comprehension vocabulary and other aspects of literacy across the content areas and for providing effective interventions for students who require additional support The authors describe RTI procedures that are specifically tailored to the needs of struggling adolescent learners and that take into account the challenges and logistics of secondary level implementation More than 20 reproducible tools for planning assessment progress monitoring and multi tiered instruction are featured the large size format facilitates photocopying Provided by publisher Supporting Readers in Secondary Schools Wendy Jolliffe,David Waugh,Jayne Stead,Sue Beverton,2014-05-12 Are you a secondary school teacher who needs to know about phonics and teaching reading Then this book is for you There are lots of books on teaching phonics but most are written to support primary teachers This book is written specifically for secondary teachers working with children who need support with reading The text uses case studies from secondary schools to highlight effective ways to support children with reading and includes useful tips on teaching strategies and ideas for resources The text covers the subject knowledge you need for the teaching of reading in the broadest sense including phonics Intended to support you as a secondary teacher it gives guidance on planning methods of assessment and explores a range of intervention programmes and resources This text is your comprehensive support resource in teaching reading Reading New Zealand.
