

Democracy and diversity: teaching for human rights and citizenship in post-conflict Iraqi Kurdistan

Niroj Ahmad, Lena Lybaek, Izzuddin Mohammed and Audrey Osler

Introduction

In December 2010 the world witnessed the beginning of a wave of demonstrations and popular uprisings across the Arab world, which has continued into 2012. One common feature of these uprisings is civil resistance. A key slogan across the region has been 'al-shah yarid biqat al-nizam' (the people want to bring down the regime). Given popular demands for greater democracy, it is perhaps time to encourage public debate on the type of education needed to build and sustain democratic practices, so as to enable future generations to benefit from these struggles.

In this article we report on INTERDEMOCRATE (Intercultural and democratic learning in teacher education), a small scale research and development initiative in the autonomous region of Iraqi Kurdistan.¹ The project aimed to address children's rights and education for democratic citizenship (EDC). It made use of action research strategies, focusing on student-centred learning (SCL). We understand SCL to encompass teaching and learning strategies which support democratic attitudes and enable students to realise their participation rights.

Late twentieth century conflict

Present day Iraqi Kurdistan has experienced much conflict and instability in the second half of the twentieth century, resulting in a damaged infrastructure at home and a notable Kurdish diaspora across the globe, including Europe. The troubles and conflicts which impacted on Iraqi Kurdistan include:

- a long history of border disputes with Iran
- the Iran-Iraq war 1980–1988

- the Anfal genocidal campaign against the Kurds 1986–89 by the Iraqi military, under Saddam Hussein
- the 1991 Gulf War
- the Kurdish uprising 1991, mass displacement and subsequent humanitarian crisis
- a brutal crackdown on the Kurdish population following the uprising
- withdrawal of Iraqi administration and military, plus an Iraqi internal blockade from 1991
- an international embargo, following imposition of UN sanctions against Iraq 1990–2003, (McDowall, 2003; Yıldız, 2004)

In 1992, the Kurdistan regional government was established, following a closely contested and inconclusive general election. But the Kurdish leadership was responsible for further difficulties. The rivalry between the Kurdistan Democratic party (KDP) and Patriotic Union of Kurdistan (PUK) resulted in the de facto partition of the region (McDowall, 2003). By 1994, power-sharing agreements between the different parties had broken down, leading to civil war, or what is referred to in Kurdish as 'brother killing brother'.

This open conflict was brought to an end under the 1998 Washington Agreement. The 2003 invasion of Iraq and the subsequent political changes led to a new 2005 Constitution of Iraq, which defines Iraqi Kurdistan as a federal entity of Iraq. In 2006 the current unified Kurdish Regional Government (KRG) administration was established.

Encyclopedia of Diversity in Education James A. Banks, 2012-05-17 The diversity education literature both nationally and internationally is broad and diffuse Consequently there needs to be a systematic and logical way to organize and present the state of research for students and professionals American citizens need to understand the dynamics of their increasingly diverse communities and institutions and the global world in which we live work and lead With continually evolving information on diversity policies practices and programs it is important to have one place where students scholars teachers and policymakers can examine and explore research policy and practice issues and find answers to important questions about how diversity in U S education enriched with theories research and practices in other nations are explained and communicated and how they affect institutional change at both the K 12 and postsecondary levels With about 700 signed entries with cross references and recommended readings the Encyclopedia of Diversity in Education 4 volumes in both print and electronic formats will present research and statistics case studies and best practices policies and programs at pre and postsecondary levels Diversity is a worldwide phenomenon and while most of the entries in the Encyclopedia will focus on the United States diversity issues and developments in nations around the world including the United States are intricately connected Consequently to illuminate the many aspects of diversity this volume will contain entries from different nations in the world in order to illuminate the myriad aspects of diversity From A to Z this Encyclopedia will cover the full spectrum of diversity issues including race class gender religion language exceptionality and the global dimensions of diversity as they relate to education This four volume reference work will be the definitive reference for diversity issues in education in the United States and the world

Making a Difference: Volume I and II Sasha A. Barab, Kenneth E. Hay, Nancy Butler Songer, Daniel T. Hickey, 2017-09-05 William Wordsworth 1770 1850 needs little introduction as the central figure in Romantic poetry and a crucial influence in the development of poetry generally This broad ranging survey redefines the variety of his writing by showing how it incorporates contemporary concepts of language difference and the ways in which popular and serious literature were compared and distinguished during this period It discusses many of Wordsworth's later poems comparing his work with that of his regional contemporaries as well as major writers such as Scott The key theme of relationship both between characters within poems and between poet and reader is explored through Wordsworth's construction of community and his use of power relationships A serious discussion of the place of sexual feeling in his writing is also included
