Resources in Education ,1999-04 The Course Reflection Project Nicole Schonemann,Emily Metzgar,Andrew Libby,2015-05-01 Service learning is entering a post initiatory phase At tertiary institutions of all types and sizes service learning programs are common and service learning requirements for graduation are growing in popularity Taken together alongside continued faculty interest in effective teaching these factors have raised the visibility and popularity of service learning Now the greater need in service learning is not to prove the need for or efficacy of service learning but to turn the focus squarely back on practice Following established best practice is not enough instructors also need to reflect on how this fits within the specific context and application of each unique course and service learning partnership While there are many excellent resources that detail best practice and showcase exemplary service learning courses faculty reflection and course revision often goes unmentioned In response to the lack of attention on the role of reflection and course revision we convened groups of faculty from a variety of disciplines to reflect deeply on their courses paying specific attention to obstacles and challenges These conversations were converted to articles for this edited collection each chapter representing the process of reflection and revision and serving as a guide to develop effective practice in varied curricular contexts This text contributes to the body of literature on service learning in a unique and practical manner Faculty teaching or interested in teaching service learning classes would benefit from this text as well as university administrators and community service directors involved in service learning at a programmatic and institutional level This book should be marketed to faculty teaching disciplinary service learning classes and service learning pedagogy classes and administrative offices involved in service learning This could be a supplementary text for graduate level pedagogy courses Higher education institutional libraries would benefit from this text as well as the national and state campus compact offices The Future of Service Post-COVID-19 Pandemic, Volume 1 Jungwoo Lee, Spring H. Han, 2021-02-08 This open access book is geared towards providing insights and stimulating new thinking about the changing nature of services service work and workers and service experiences during and after the COVID 19 pandemic in 2020 particularly focusing on digital service technology This book serves as a useful resource for business practitioners and academics in the areas of service and human resource management Each chapter deals with specific current issues within these industries due to COVID 19 and issues that will come up post pandemic As COVID 19 is expected introduce novel methods to the service sector such as untact service telecommuting alternative work arrangements job crafting and new work skills digital technology is becoming more important than ever before This books provides a range of examples and cases to elaborate on the effective application of digital service technology in order for businesses to stay relevant in the current climate APAIS 1991: Australian public affairs information service , Teaching History in a Neoliberal Age Mary Woolley, 2019-09-04 This book explores changing practice in history classrooms from the autonomy of the 1980s through the introduction of GCSEs and the National

Curriculum to the prescription of the National Strategies and the pervasive influence of league tables in the first decade of the twenty first century It uses individual narratives from history teachers to shed light on a changing profession Showcasing research that is crucial reading for leaders in education it uses oral accounts from 13 experienced teachers to provide a rich testimony of the constraints and affordances acting on history teachers The book offers a unique perspective to show how teachers experienced steady but substantial changes in policy and autonomy and how this affected their practice this detail enhances an analysis of policy and curricular documents across three decades The findings are crucial for educational settings today facing crises of teacher recruitment and teacher retention This book will be of great interest to academics and higher degree research students in history education history of education and education policy It will also be of interest to beginning history teachers and senior school leaders responsible for teacher development and curriculum
