Shopping All the Way to the Woods Rachel S. Gross,2024-03-26 A fascinating history of the profitable paradox of the American outdoor experience visiting nature first requires shopping No escape to nature is complete without a trip to an outdoor recreational store or a browse through online offerings This is the irony of the American outdoor experience visiting wild spaces supposedly untouched by capitalism first requires shopping With consumers spending billions of dollars on clothing and equipment each year as they seek out nature the American outdoor sector grew over the past 150 years from a small collection of outfitters to an industry contributing more than 2 percent of the nation s economic output Rachel S Gross argues that this success was predicated not just on creating functional equipment but also on selling an authentic anticommercial outdoor identity In other words shopping for the woods was also about being or becoming the right kind of person Demonstrating that outdoor culture is commercial culture Gross examines Americans journey toward outdoor expertise by tracing the development of the nascent outdoor goods industry the influence of World War II on its growth and the boom years of outdoor businesses

The Legacy of a Red Hills Hunting Plantation Robert L Crawford, William R Brueckheimer, 2012-10-21 The Red Hills region is an idyllic setting filled with longleaf pines that stretches from Tallahassee Florida to Thomasville Georgia At its heart lies Tall Timbers a former hunting plantation In 1919 sportsman Henry L Beadel purchased the Red Hills plantation to be used for quail hunting As was the tradition he conducted prescribed burnings after every hunting season in order to clear out the thick brush to make it more appealing to the nesting birds After the U S Forest Service outlawed the practice in the 1920s condemning it as harmful for the forest and its wildlife the quail population diminished dramatically Astonished by this loss and encouraged by his naturalist friend Herbert L Stoddard Beadel set his sights on conserving the land in order to study the effects of prescribed burnings on wildlife Upon his death in 1958 Beadel donated the entire Tall Timbers estate to be used as an ecological research station The Legacy of a Red Hills Hunting Plantation traces Beadel s evolution from sportsman and naturalist to conservationist Complemented by a wealth of previously unpublished rare vintage photographs it follows the transformation of the plantation into what its founders envisioned a long term plot study station independent of government or academic funding and control
