What comes before phonics? Sally Neaum, Author, 2021-02-24 What comes before phonics The teaching of phonics is now strongly embedded in early literacy teaching in schools and early years settings and it has been shown to be an important part of becoming literate There is however significant concern about the formalising of phonics teaching for very young children So what should we be focusing on in early years What comes before this formal teaching What do children need to know and experience to enable them to access phonics teaching with success This book looks in detail at the knowledge understanding skills and attitudes that children need to enable them to come to phonics teaching ready to learn and with a good chance of success The second edition has been updated to include the latest research and enhanced support on working with parents and carers The Learning and Teaching of Phonological Decoding in Chinese EFL Children Keren Hua, 2024-08-30 This book presents the learning and teaching of phonological decoding in Chinese EFL primary classrooms The phonological decoding ability of the children is described interpreted and evaluated the teaching materials are analyzed

Traditionally music and language have been treated as different psychological faculties This duality is reflected in older theories about the lateralization of speech and music in that speech functions were thought to be localized on the left and music functions on the right hemisphere But with the advent of modern brain imaging techniques and the improvement of neurophysiological measures to investigate brain functions an entirely new view on the neural and psychological underpinnings of music and speech has evolved The main point of convergence in the findings of these new studies is that music and speech functions have many aspects in common and that several neural modules are similarly involved in speech and music There is also emerging evidence that speech functions can benefit from music functions and vice versa This new research field has accumulated a lot of new information and it is therefore timely to bring together the work of those researchers who have been most visible productive and inspiring in this field and to ask them to present their new work or provide a summary of their laboratory s work The Reading Leadership Academy Guidebook ,2002 Handbook of
