Literati Lenses Mia Yinling Liu, 2019-07-31 Chinese cinema has a long history of engagement with China's art traditions and literati wenren landscape painting has been an enduring source of inspiration Literati Lenses explores this interplay during the Mao era a time when cinema at the forefront of ideological campaigns and purges was held to strict political guidelines Through four films Li Shizhen 1956 Stage Sisters 1964 Early Spring in February 1963 and Legend of Tianyun Mountain 1979 Mia Liu reveals how landscape offered an alternative text that could operate beyond political constraints and provide a portal for smuggling interesting discourses into the film While allusions to pictorial traditions associated with a bygone era inevitably took on different meanings in the context of Mao era cinema cinematic engagement with literati landscape endowed films with creative and critical space as well as political poignancy Liu not only identifies how the conventions and aesthetics of traditional literati landscape art were reinvented and mediated on multiple levels in cinema but also explores how post 1949 Chinese filmmakers configured themselves as modern intellectuals in the spaces forged among the vestiges of the old In the process she deepens her analysis suggesting that landscape be seen as an allegory of human life a mirror of the age and a commentary on national affairs Outing, 1914 Catalog of Copyright Entries, 1928

Osiewicz, 2015-08-17 The main advantage of this monograph is that it attempts to conduct the most up to date analysis possible of the present political situation in Egypt and the Middle East Therefore we receive a monograph which allows us not only to look at the Arab Spring from a historical perspective but primarily to reflect on the consequences of these past events that it was hoped would spark political reforms in Arab states and facilitate greater public participation in the system of governance Thus this publication allows the verification of many of the judgments and opinions expressed during the Arab Spring on the possible direction of development of the political processes initiated by the massive social revolts in Arab countries Building a New China in Cinema Laikwan Pang, 2002-05-01 Building a New China in Cinema introduces English readers for the first time to one of the most exciting left wing cinema traditions in the world This unique book explores the history ideology and aesthetics of China s left wing cinema movement a quixotic film culture that was as political as commercial as militant as sensationalist Originating in the 1930s it marked the first systematic intellectual involvement in Chinese cinema In this era of turmoil and idealism the movement s films were characterized by fantasies of heroism intertwined with the inescapable spell of impotency thus exposing the contradictions of the filmmakers underlying ideology as their political and artistic agendas alternately fought against or catered to the taste and viewing habits of a popular audience Political cinema became a commercially successful industry resulting in a film culture that has never been replicated Drawing on detailed archival research Pang demonstrates that this cinema movement was a product of the era s social economic and political discourses The author offers a close analysis of many rarely seen films richly illustrated with over eighty stills collected from the Beijing Film Archive With its original conceptual approach and rich use of primary sources this book will be of interest not only to scholars and fans of Chinese cinema but to those who study the relationship between cinema and modernity
