Reintegrating Armed Groups After Conflict Mats Berdal, David Ucko, 2009-04-07 This book looks at the political reintegration of armed groups after civil wars and the challenges of transforming rebel insurgent or other non state armed groups into viable political entities. Drawing on eight case studies the definition of armed groups here ranges from militias paramilitary forces police units of various kinds to intelligence outfits. Likewise the definition of political integration or re integration has not been restricted to the formation of political parties but is understood broadly as active participation in politics policy making or public debate through parties newspapers social organisations think tanks NGOs or public service. The book seeks to locate or contextualise individual cases within their distinctive social cultural and historical settings. As such it differs from much of the donor driven literature that has tended to abstract the challenge of disarmament demobilisation and reintegration (DDR) from their political and historical context focusing instead on technical or bureaucratic issues raised by the DDR process. Among the issues covered by the volume as a whole three stand out first the role of political settlements in creating legitimate opportunities for erstwhile leaders of armed factions second the ability of reintegration programmes to create genuine socio economic opportunities that can absorb former fighters as functional members of their communities and third the processes involved in transforming an entire rebel movement into a viable political party movement or more generally allowing it to participate in political life. This book will be of great interest to students of security and development peace and conflict studies and IR in general as well as practitioners and policymakers. Mats Berdal is Professor of Security and Development in the Department of War Studies at King's College London. From 2000 to 2003 he was Director of Studies at the International Institute for Strategic Studies (IISS) in London. Mats Berdal is a Visiting Professor at the National Defence and Command College Oslo. David Ucko is the Programme Coordinator Research Fellow for the Conflict Security Development Research Group King's College London.

Follow the Fire: Lessons in Life and Leadership Dr. T.J. Jenney, 2017-03-09 Embark on a 40 day journey following in the footsteps of this remarkable man of faith and take up the challenge to grow personally and spiritually in life and leadership. Learn the lessons of life and leadership that brought Moses from the baby in a basket of bulrushes to the bulwark of faith on the battlefield. God called Moses from the brink of death to the pinnacle of power in Pharaoh's house of privilege. Then from the pinnacle of power and privilege Moses fled to the humble and desolate sands of the desert wilderness. And then after 40 years of being molded by God's Spirit Moses responded to the call to lead the Israelites from slavery to freedom from defeat to victory from bondage to promise not because of his abilities but because of the transforming power of faith in God and the promises of God
