The Multilateral System Of Payments Keynes Convertibility The International Monetary Funds Articles Of Agreement:

The Multilateral System of Payments Mr. Joseph Gold, 1981-08-04 Volume 26 of the Collected Writings of John Maynard Keynes records for the first time a strange episode in the development of the International Monetary Fund The Multilateral System of Payments Joseph Gold, 1983 Formulation of Exchange Rate Policies in Adjustment Programs International Monetary Fund, 1985-08-15 The role of exchange rate policy in economic adjustment has been widely studied and is the subject of numerous theoretical and empirical papers produced in the Fund and elsewhere Issues in the Assessment of the Exchange Rates of Industrial Countries International Monetary Fund, 1984-07-08 In its surveillance activities the Fund is frequently confronted with the difficult problem of how to identify exchange rate behavior that is unrelated to underlying economic and financial conditions and consequently should be viewed with concern from a national or international standpoint This paper considers the various issues related to this problem as it pertains to industrial countries both those that have independently floating exchange rates and those that operate under other exchange arrangements Aging and Social Expenditure in the Major Industrial Countries, 1980-2025 Ziba Farhadian, Mr. Bernard Nivollet, Mr. Robert Alan Feldman, Mr. Peter S. Heller, Mr. Richard Hemming, Mr. Menachem Katz, Ahsan S. Mansur, Mr. Donogh McDonald, Mr. Edgardo Ruggiero, Mr. Peter Kohnert, 1986-09-15 Most of the seven major industrial countries are now experiencing significant changes in their demographic structure A persistent pattern of declining fertility and improving life expectancy has created major segments of the population that are already relatively aged or will become so in the near future This paper examines the impact of prospective demographic trends on the level and structure of social expenditure by the governments of the seven major industrial countries the Group of Seven through the year 2025 Alternatives to the Central Bank in the Developing World Mr. Charles Collyns, 1983-03-15 This paper discusses the operations of a wide range of central banking institutions in developing countries The considerable diversity of economic financial and political conditions within the Third World has brought forth a wide variety of central banking institutions Four polar types have been identified as providing coherent alternatives to the central bank Historical experience certainly indicates that legislation on its own may not be enough to guarantee prudent behavior Although many countries central banking institutions have not yet come close to violating foreign exchange cover requirements or restrictions on government lending in other cases the rules have simply been sidestepped by technical adjustments altered expediently or merely ignored The organizational structure established by legislation probably plays a more positive part in determining a central banking institution's characteristic behavior Operating procedures channels of communication and lines of command all exert some influence on where and how decisions are made in practice The balance of power between government and monetary authority does not only depend on personality and outside support but will also be influenced by the institutional framework in which their interaction is established Trade Policy Issues and Developments Mr.Shailendra J. Anjaria,Ms.Naheed Kirmani,Mr.Arne B. Petersen,1985-07-08 This paper discusses the salient features of recent developments and outlines the prospects for trade policy by highlighting the main issues that will determine the scope and timing of liberalization under a possible new General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade GATT round of multilateral trade negotiations As the more advanced developing countries acquire the skills and investments to diversify exports toward more sophisticated manufactured products restrictions against them tend to multiply These not only impede the export prospects of the developing countries directly affected but also slow specialization and diversification thus severely affecting the smaller developing country exporters Across the board protectionist measures have been avoided in the industrial countries because it is widely acknowledged that trade restrictions and protectionism are inappropriate responses to exchange rate developments Exchange rate movements reflect financial flows as well as trade flows and the importance of exchange rates that correspond to underlying economic fundamentals is unquestioned A Case of Successful Adjustment Mr.Jorge Márquez-Ruarte,Bijan B. Aghevli,1985-08-15 This paper was prepared by Bijan B Aghevli Division Chief in the international Monetary Fund s Asian Department and Jorge Marquez Ruarte Senior Economist in the Asian Department In preparing the paper the authors have relied extensively on the analysis and information provided by the Korean authorities as well as on the work of the Fund staff on Korea during the period under study Oil Exporters' Economic Development in an Interdependent World Jahangir Amuzegar,1983-04-06 Not unpredictably there is a complex energy bind as we approach the end of the twentieth century The oil importing industrial countries have anchored their industries their means of transportation their home comfort in short their whole energy dependent lifestyle largely to hydrocarbon fuels IMF Staff papers International Monetary Fund. Research Dept.,1981-01-01 The paper discusses the application of economic analysis and statistics to several questions of tax administration and legislation bearing on it The principle of equalizing marginal administrative costs and marginal tax revenue is suggestive but persuasive arguments can be made for spending more or less than it indicates The marginal principle nevertheless is valuable as a guide for allocating a fixed appropriation that is too small to cover all remunerative activities Human capital theory corroborates the productivity of staff training but implies that different financing arrangements may be appropriate for general and specialized training Economic studies can help in establishing criteria for identifying cases for detailed examination or audit and in making administrative or alternative assessments where accounts are inadequate A lump sum first year depreciation allowance equal to the discounted value of normal allowances would have merit as a simple method of adjusting for inflation Tax administrators and economists could benefit from acquaintance with the attitudes and methods of each other s discipline
