Kaufer, Brian S. Butler, 2013-11-26 The design arts from the design of buildings and machines to software and interfaces are associated with types of knowledge and performance thought to be structured modular and systematic Such arts have become increasingly prestigious in our technocratic society Since Aristotle the art of rhetoric was conceived as a loosely structured practical art thought to be limited in the extent to which it could mimic more precise subject matters The art of rhetoric has been controversial since classical times but its status has sunk even lower since the industrial revolution a point when civic cultures began to cede authority and control to the cultures of specialized experts Many sympathizers of rhetoric have resisted its decline by calling for a civic art of public discourse to stand in opposition to a technocratic specialized discourse that has come increasingly to disenfranchise the ordinary citizen This is the first book to question the rhetoric technical knowledge split from a more fundamental perspective To get some perspective on what is at stake in rhetoric s traditional classification as a practical art the authors explore the distinction between practical and design arts enumerate the various criteria cited in the literature for qualifying a cluster of knowledge and performative skills to count as an art of design show how the knowledge and performative skills associated with the art of rhetoric meet the major requirements of design knowledge propose a general architecture of rhetorical design one descriptive both of civic address and specialized academic argument turn to the Lincoln Douglas debates to embody and provide some empirical support and illustration for their architecture demonstrate how Lincoln and Douglas can be thought of as expert designers whose rhetoric is highly structured and modular and explain how the rhetoric of both rhetorical agents can be represented in the layers and modules that one needs to display plans for buildings software or other design artifacts These layers and modules are not just post hoc annotations of the debates they also illuminate new and systematic ways for viewing the debates and by implication other specimens of rhetoric in terms of strategies of artistic production Kaufer and Butler conclude their presentation by citing some of the research and educational implications that follow from housing rhetoric within the family of design arts

Nominal and Pronominal Address in Jamaica and Trinidad Matthias Klumm, 2021-09-15 This book examines the various patterns of nominal and pronominal address used in Jamaica and Trinidad the two most populous islands of the English speaking Caribbean Given that the Anglo Caribbean context has so far been largely neglected in address research this study aims to provide an in depth analysis of the linguistic means Jamaicans and Trinidadians have at their disposal and make use of to address each other A particular focus will be on variation in the speakers address behaviour with regard to their sex age social class ethnicity and regional background The study draws both on data from a self compiled corpus of postcolonial Jamaican and Trinidadian literary works and on questionnaire and interview data collected during fieldwork This book contributes to the ever growing body of research in the field of nominal and pronominal address and will be relevant to researchers interested in the fields of sociolinguistics pragmatics and World Englishes

Expressing the Self Minyao Huang, Kasia M. Jaszczolt, 2018-02-24 This book addresses different linguistic and philosophical aspects of referring to the self in a wide range of languages from different language families including Amharic English French Japanese Korean Mandarin Newari Sino Tibetan Polish Tariana Arawak and Thai In the domain of speaking about oneself languages use a myriad of expressions that cut across grammatical and semantic categories as well as a wide variety of constructions Languages of Southeast and East Asia famously employ a great number of terms for first person reference to signal honorification The number and mixed properties of these terms make them debatable candidates for pronounhood with many grammar driven classifications opting to classify them with nouns Some languages make use of egophors or logophors and many exhibit an interaction between expressing the self and expressing evidentiality qua the epistemic status of information held from the ego perspective The volume s focus on expressing the self however is not directly motivated by an interest in the grammar or lexicon but instead stems from philosophical discussions on the special status of thoughts about oneself known as de se thoughts It is this interdisciplinary understanding of expressing the self that underlies this volume comprising philosophy of mind at one end of the spectrum and cross cultural pragmatics of self expression at the other This unprecedented juxtaposition results in a novel method of approaching de se and de se expressions in which research methods from linguistics and philosophy inform each other The importance of this interdisciplinary perspective on expressing the self cannot be overemphasized Crucially the volume also demonstrates that linguistic research on first person reference makes a valuable contribution to research on the self tout court by exploring the ways in which the self is expressed and thereby adding to the insights gained through philosophy psychology and cognitive science

Deconstructing Creole Umberto Ansaldo, Stephen Matthews, Lisa Lim, 2007-06-22 Deconstructing Creole is a collection of studies aimed at critically assessing the idea of creole languages as a homogeneous structural type with shared and peculiar patterns of genesis Following up on the critical discussion of notions of creole exceptionalism as historical and ideological constructs this volume tests the basic assumptions that underlie current attempts to present creole structure as a special type from typological as well as sociohistorical perspectives The sum of the findings presented here suggests that careful empirical investigation of input varieties and contact environments can explain the structural output without recourse to an exceptional genesis scenario Echoing calls to dissolve the notion of creolization as a special diachronic process this volume proposes that theoretically grounded approaches to the notions of simplicity complexity transmission etc do not warrant considering so called creole languages as a special synchronic type

Wonder Frank C. Keil, 2022-03-01 How we can all be lifelong wonderers restoring the sense of joy in discovery we felt as children From an early age children pepper adults with questions that ask why and how Why do balloons float How do plants grow from seeds Why do birds have feathers Young children have a powerful drive to learn about their world wanting to know not just what something is but also how it got to be that way and how it works Most adults on the other hand have little curiosity about whys and hows we might unlock a door for example or boil an egg with no idea of what happens to make such a thing possible How can grown ups recapture a child s sense of wonder at the world In this book Frank Keil describes the cognitive dispositions that set children on their paths of discovery and explains how we can all become lifelong wonderers Keil describes recent research on children s minds that reveals an extraordinary set of emerging abilities that underpin their joy of discovery their need to learn not just the facts but the underlying causal patterns at the very heart of science This glorious sense of wonder however is stifled beginning in elementary school Later with little interest in causal mechanisms and motivated by intellectual blind spots as adults we become vulnerable to misinformation and manipulation ready to believe things that aren t true Of course the polymaths among us have retained their sense of wonder and Keil explains the habits of mind and ways of wondering that allow them and can enable us to experience the joy of asking why and how
