was the first example of a new type of choice for congressmen presidents and other government officials life and death on a national scale From that moment our government began fashioning public policy for issues of scientific development discoveries and inventions that could secure or threaten our existence and our future But those same men and women had no training in such fields did not understand the ramifications of the research and relied on incomplete information to form potentially life changing decisions Through the story of the Manhattan Project Neil J Sullivan asks by what criteria the people in charge at the time made such critical decisions He also ponders how similar judgments are reached today with similar incomprehension from those at the top as our society dives down the potential rabbit hole of bioengineering nanotechnology and scientific developments yet to come
