1974

A painting of a man in a dark suit, white shirt, and patterned tie, sitting at a dark wooden desk. He is looking slightly to the right with a serious expression. His right hand holds a pen over an open book or document, and his left hand holds a pair of glasses. On the desk are several papers, a large brown folder, and a small white card. The background is dark and textured, with a framed picture on the wall to the right.

South Africa, a Visual History, 1975 [Anonymus AC03632849],1976 National Geographic Essential Visual History of the World ,2007 Illustrations photographs and text describe the prominent figures and important events in the history of the world from prehistory through 2006 Includes time lines A History of South Africa at the Venice Biennale Annchen Bronkowski,2025-11-21 This study presents the first history of the South African national pavilion at the Venice Biennale since it first participated in 1950 up until its contemporary pavilions Covering a contentious period in South African history the pavilion engenders a thought provoking engagement with questions around national identity and visual representation What has it meant for a country like South Africa to be at the Venice Biennale How national is a national pavilion The book acts as a case study highlighting how this understanding of what is national and what is representative has changed throughout the decades At first it was associated with stylistic concerns evidencing the polemic post war shift from academic to modern art in the mid century towards the 1960s South African art in Venice sought to capture something of a specific South Africanness rather than seeking to emulate the general tendencies of Euramerican modernism the country s exclusion from Venice during the boycott years of the 1970s to early 1990s evidences the clear emergence of a politically conscious national aesthetic South Africa s re entry highlights how the tenets of post apartheid nation building had to be navigated within a postmodern globalist art world beset with post nationalism This study shows that South Africa has always been caught between national determinations and internationalist aspirations and the contrast of this tension is nowhere more sharply reflected than at the Venice Biennale with its national pavilion structure This book is suitable for researchers and students in Art History African Studies and Museum Studies Library of Congress Catalogs Library of Congress,1976
