Regional Economic Issues, Central, Eastern, and Southeastern Europe International Monetary Fund. European Dept., 2016-05-02 This paper discusses the robust growth that continues in most Central and Southeastern European economies as well as in Turkey Accommodative macroeconomic policies improving financial intermediation and rising real wages have been behind the region s mostly consumption driven rebound while private investment remained subdued In the near term strong domestic demand is expected to continue supporting growth amid continued low or negative inflation The Russian economy went through a sharp contraction last year amid plunging oil prices and sanctions Other CIS countries were hurt by domestic political and financial woes as well as by weak demand from Russia In 2016 output contraction is projected to moderate to around 11.2 percent from 41.4 percent in 2015 as the shocks that hit the CIS economies gradually reverberate less and activity stabilizes In the baseline a combination of supportive monetary policy and medium term fiscal consolidation remains valid for many economies in the region
