Jean-Henri Fabre, 2020-06-25 Few insects in our climes vie in popular fame with the Glow worm that curious little animal which to celebrate the little joys of life kindles a beacon at its tail end Who does not know it at least by name Who has not seen it roam amid the grass like a spark fallen from the moon at its full The Greeks of old called it Greek lampouris meaning the bright tailed Science employs the same term it calls the lantern bearer Lampyrus noctiluca LIN In this case the common name is inferior to the scientific phrase which when translated becomes both expressive and accurate In fact we might easily cavil at the word worm The Lampyrus is not a worm at all not even in general appearance He has six short legs which he well knows how to use he is a gad about a trot about In the adult state the male is correctly garbed in wing cases like the true Beetle that he is The female is an ill favoured thing who knows naught of the delights of flying all her life long she retains the larval shape which for the rest is similar to that of the male who himself is imperfect so long as he has not achieved the maturity that comes with pairing time Even in this initial stage the word worm is out of place We French have the expression Naked as a worm to point to the lack of any defensive covering Now the Lampyrus is clothed that is to say he wears an epidermis of some consistency moreover he is rather richly coloured his body is dark brown all over set off with pale pink on the thorax especially on the lower surface Finally each segment is decked at the hinder edge with two spots of a fairly bright red A costume like this was never worn by a worm The Sacred Beetle and Others Jean-Henri Fabre, 1918 The life of

Jean Henri Fabre, the entomologist, 1823-1910 Augustin Fabre, 2025-03-02 In The Life of Jean Henri Fabre the Entomologist 1823 1910 Augustin Fabre intricately weaves a narrative that not only chronicles the life of his illustrious father Jean Henri Fabre but also situates his contributions within the broader context of entomology and natural history Written with a blend of biographical detail and scientific exploration the text is both informative and eloquent showcasing Fabre's innovative observational methods and profound impact on the scientific community The literary style reflects a deep reverence for nature and meticulous attention to detail making it an invaluable resource for understanding late 19th century scientific thought and its intersection with personal narrative Augustin Fabre himself an author and historian is profoundly influenced by his father's legacy which has shaped his own understanding of nature and science The dedication and passion of Jean Henri Fabre who famously documented the behaviors and lives of insects serve as a powerful backdrop for Augustin's reflections. This familial connection enriches the narrative, providing readers not only with biographical facts but also with insights into the motivations and trials faced by a pioneering entomologist in a rapidly evolving scientific landscape. I highly recommend this book to anyone interested in natural history, biography, or the intricacies of scientific exploration. Augustin Fabre's work is an essential tribute to an iconic figure in the entomology field, revealing the struggles and triumphs that defined Jean Henri Fabre's life. It invites readers to appreciate the beauty and complexity of the natural world through the eyes of one of its greatest advocates.
