Invasive and Introduced Plants and Animals Ian D. Rotherham, Robert A. Lambert, 2012-12-06 There have been many well publicized cases of invasive species of plants and animals often introduced unintentionally but sometimes on purpose causing widespread ecological havoc Examples of such alien invasions include pernicious weeds such as Japanese knotweed an introduced garden ornamental which can grow through concrete the water hyacinth which has choked tropical waterways and many introduced animals which have out competed and displaced local fauna This book addresses the broader context of invasive and exotic species in terms of the perceived threats and environmental concerns which surround alien species and ecological invasions As a result of unprecedented scales of environmental change combined with rapid globalisation the mixing of cultures and diversity and fears over biosecurity and bioterrorism the known impacts of particular invasions have been catastrophic However as several chapters show reactions to some exotic species and the justifications for interventions in certain situations including biological control by introduced natural enemies rest uncomfortably with social reactions to ethnic cleansing and persecution perpetrated across the globe The role of democracy in deciding and determining environmental policy is another emerging issue In an increasingly multicultural society this raises huge questions of ethics and choice At the same time in order to redress major ecological losses the science of reintroduction of native species has also come to the fore and is widely accepted by many in nature conservation However with questions of where and when and with what species or even species analogues reintroductions are acceptable the topic is hotly debated Again it is shown that many decisions are based on values and perceptions rather than objective science Including a wide range of case studies from around the world his book raises critical issues to stimulate a much wider debate

The Forms of Youth Stephanie Burt, 2007-09-04 Early in the twentieth century Americans and other English speaking nations began to regard adolescence as a separate phase of life Associated with uncertainty inwardness instability and sexual energy adolescence acquired its own tastes habits subcultures slang economic interests and art forms This new idea of adolescence became the driving force behind some of the modern era's most original poetry Stephen Burt demonstrates how adolescence supplied the inspiration and at times the formal principles on which many twentieth century poets founded their works William Carlos Williams and his contemporaries fashioned their American verse in response to the idealization of new kinds of youth in the 1910s and 1920s W H Auden's early work Philip Larkin's verse Thom Gunn's transatlantic poetry and Basil Bunting's late modernist masterpiece Briggflatts all track the development of adolescence in Britain as it moved from the private space of elite schools to the urban public space of sixties subcultures The diversity of American poetry from the Second World War to the end of the sixties illuminates poets' reactions to the idea that teenagers juvenile delinquents hippies and student radicals might for better or worse transform the nation George Oppen Gwendolyn Brooks and Robert Lowell in particular built and rebuilt their sixties styles in reaction to changing concepts of youth Contemporary poets continue to fashion new ideas of youth Laura Kasischke and Jorie Graham focus on the discoveries of a specifically female adolescence The Irish poet Paul Muldoon and the Australian poet John Tranter use teenage perspectives to represent a postmodernist uncertainty Other poets have rejected traditional and modern ideas of adolescence preferring instead to view this age as a reflection of the uncertainties and restricted tastes of the way we live now The first comprehensive study of adolescence in twentieth century poetry The Forms of Youth recasts the history of how English speaking cultures began to view this phase of life as a valuable state of consciousness if not the very essence of a Western identity

Narrative and Voice in Postwar Poetry Neil Roberts, 2014-05-12. Poetry in English since the Second World War has produced a number of highly original narrative works as diverse as Derek Walcott's Omeros, Ted Hughes' Gaudete, and Anne Stevenson's Correspondences. At the same time, poetry in general has been permeated by narrative features, particularly those linguistic characteristics that Mikhail Bakhtin considered peculiar to the novel and which he termed dialogic. This book examines the narrative and dialogic elements in the work of a range of poets from Britain, America, Ireland, Australia, and the Caribbean, including poetry from the immediate postwar years to the contemporary and novel-like narratives to personal lyrics. Its unifying theme is the way in which these poets, with such contrasting styles and from such varied backgrounds, respond to and creatively adapt the language worlds and hence the social worlds in which they live. The volume includes a detailed bibliography to assist students in further study and will be a valuable resource to undergraduate and postgraduate students of contemporary poetry.

Literary Form as Postcolonial Critique Katharine Burkitt, 2016-05-06. Focusing on works by Derek Walcott, Les Murray, Anne Carson, and Bernardine Evaristo, Katharine Burkitt investigates the relationship between literary form and textual politics in postcolonial narrative poems and verse novels. Burkitt argues that these works disrupt and undermine the traditions of particular forms and genres and most notably the expectations attached to the prose novel, poetry, and epic. This subversion of form, Burkitt argues, is an important aspect of the texts' postcoloniality as they locate themselves critically in relation to literary convention and they are all concerned with matters of social, racial, and national identities in a world where these categories are inherently complicated. In addition, the awareness of epic tradition in these texts unites them as post epics in that, as they reuse the myths and motifs of a variety of epics, they question the status of the form, demonstrate it to be inherently malleable, and regenerate its stories for the contemporary world. As she examines the ways in which postcolonial texts rewrite the traditions of classical epics for the twentieth and twenty-first centuries, Burkitt ties close textual analysis to a critical intervention in the politics of form.

Fredy Neptune Les Murray, 2025-09-23. A riveting beautiful novel in verse by Australia's greatest contemporary poet, winner of the 1996 T. S. Eliot Prize. I never learned the old top ropes. I was always in steam. Less capstan, less climbing, more re-stowing cargo. Which could be hard and slow as farming, but to say: Why this is Valparaiso. Or I'm in Singapore and know my way about, takes a long time to get stale from Book I. The Middle Sea. When German Australian sailor Friedrich Fredy Boettcher is shanghaied aboard a German Navy battleship at the outbreak of World War I, the sight of frenzied mobs burning Armenian women to death in Turkey causes him through moral shock to lose his sense of touch This mysterious disability which he knows he must hide is both protection and curse as he orbits the high horror and low humor of a catastrophic age Told in a blue collar English that regains freshness by eschewing the mind set of literary language Fredy's picaresque life as perhaps the only Nordic Superman ever is deep dyed in layers of irony and attains a mind inverting resolution

Les Murray Steven Matthews, 2001 In the only full critical study of Les Murray's work Steven Matthews provides a complete account of the poet's career to date A controversial figure Murray's version of Australian republicanism has caused heated argument about the future direction of his country as it moves away from its colonial past With detailed readings of major poems and literary and cultural contexts surrounding the work Matthews gives an overview of Murray's place in Australian literature and national thought
