Informatics in Developing Countries is a collection of papers documenting the conference of the Expert Group on Computers and Informatics for Development which investigates how the international scientific and development community can assist developing countries in using computer and informatics technology to promote progress and growth. The papers address the need for developing countries to formulate and apply computer and informatics policies for development as well as the role of an International Centre for Computers and Informatics (ICCI) should play in the development process. The ICCI should be based on the network principle that links other regional and national computer centers. The advantages of the network principle are lower startup costs, avoidance of setting up a large organization, and localized services of needs. An international organization similar to ICCI can accelerate Third World developmental efforts following the identification of needs of developing countries as regards computer and informatics, setting of clear objectives of ICCI and meeting with potential donors. The collection is suitable for heads of both non government agencies and government departments involved in international aid, education or development and also to administrators of educational institutions and philanthropic organizations. Analytical Methods in Petroleum Upstream Applications Cesar Ovalles, Carl E. Rechsteiner Jr., 2015-04-02 Effective measurement of the composition and properties of petroleum is essential for its exploration, production and refining; however, new technologies and methodologies are not adequately documented in much of the current literature. Analytical Methods in Petroleum Upstream Applications explores advances in the analytical methods and instrumentation that allow more accurate determination of the components, classes of compounds, properties and features of petroleum and its fractions. Recognized experts explore a host of topics including: A petroleum molecular composition continuity model as a context for other analytical measurements; A modern modular sampling system for use in the lab or the process area to collect and control samples for subsequent analysis; The importance of oil in water measurements and monitoring; The chemical and physical properties of heavy oils, their fractions and products from their upgrading; Analytical measurements using gas chromatography and nuclear magnetic resonance (NMR) applications; Asphaltene and heavy ends analysis; Chemometrics and modeling approaches for understanding petroleum composition and properties to improve upstream, midstream and downstream operations. Due to the renaissance of gas and oil production in North America, interest has grown in analytical methods for a wide range of applications. The understanding provided in this text is designed to help chemists, geologists and chemical and petroleum engineers make more accurate estimates of the crude value to specific refinery configurations, providing insight into optimum development and extraction schemes.
