packed enough punch to sink capital ships like battleships and carriers at ranges of several miles American submarines though smaller could dive deeply move quickly and provide both firepower and survivability Though their Type XIV and Type XVIII torpedoes could not match the Japanese Type 93 they still gave a lethal punch particularly after improvements in late 1943 The USS Archerfish demonstrated the deadliness of American submarines to Japanese capital ships also The submariners of both fleets showed immense courage daring and skill in carrying out their duties Both groups of men exhibited aggression patriotism and fighting spirit in equal measure regardless of the different cultural lenses through which these traits manifested themselves Both navies successfully produced professional highly capable submarine officers The Japanese however decided to use their submarines mainly to support a grand fleet action at visual ranges which never occurred Instead the submarines carried out sporadic uncoordinated attacks and the rest of the time remained on sentry duty or found their time squandered with supply runs and undersea evacuations The Japanese never corrected these problems probably due to cultural factors The rowdy democratic Americans suspicious of authority and used to asserting themselves confronted their commanders boisterously when they felt something was amiss The torpedo problem nearly caused fistfights between submarine skippers and admirals yet in the end the admirals examined and corrected the problem Though constituting only 1.6% of the total U.S. Navy's tonnage in the Pacific the submarine fleet inflicted massive losses on the Imperial Japanese Navy and Japan's crucial merchant marine Submarines sank 55% of the merchant shipping lost or approximately 1,300 vessels overall the Allies sank 77% of Japan's shipping The submarines also sank 214 Japanese warships including 82 of 1,000 tons or more 4 carriers 4 escort carriers one battleship 4 heavy cruisers 9 light cruisers 38 destroyers and 23 submarines or approximately 30% of the entire Imperial Japanese Navy The sleek predatory craft made in the shipyards of Virginia Wisconsin or Washington state devastated the naval and freighter assets of the Empire of the Rising Sun out of all proportion to their numbers at a cost of 42 submarines on Eternal Patrol Submarine Warfare in the Pacific The History of the Fighting Under the Waves between Japan and America during World War II analyzes the underwater fighting between the Allies and Japan across the Pacific theater

Sink 'Em All Charles A. Lockwood, 1984 The War Below James M. Scott, 2013-05-14 Beautifully researched and masterfully told Alex Kershaw New York Times bestselling author of Escape from the Deep this is the riveting story of the heroic and tragic US submarine force that helped win World War II in the Pacific Focusing on the unique stories of three of the war's top submarines Silversides Drum and Tang The War Below vividly re-creates the camaraderie exhilaration and fear of the brave volunteers who took the fight to the enemy's coastline in World War II Award winning journalist James Scott recounts incredible feats of courage from an emergency appendectomy performed with kitchen utensils to sailors' desperate struggle to escape from a flooded submarine as well as moments of unimaginable tragedy including an attack on an unmarked enemy freighter carrying 1,800 American prisoners of war The casualty rate among submariners topped that of all other military branches The war claimed almost one out of every five submarines and a submarine crewman was six times more likely to die than a sailor onboard a surface ship But this valorous service accomplished its mission Silversides Drum and Tang sank a combined sixty two freighters tankers and transports The Japanese were so ravaged from the loss of precious supplies that by the war s end pilots resorted to suicidal kamikaze missions and hungry civilians ate sawdust while warships had to drop anchor due to lack of fuel In retaliation the Japanese often beat tortured and starved captured submariners in the atrocious prisoner of war camps Based on more than 100 interviews with submarine veterans and thousands of pages of previously unpublished letters and diaries The War Below lets readers experience the battle for the Pacific as never before

Surface and Destroy Michael Sturma,2011-03-25 World War II submariners rarely experienced anything as exhilarating or horrifying as the surface gun attack Between the ocean floor and the rolling whitecaps above submarines patrolled a dark abyss in a fusion of silence shadows and steel firing around eleven thousand torpedoes sinking Japanese men of war and more than one thousand merchant ships But the anonymity and simplicity of the stealthy torpedo attack hid the savagery of warfare a stark difference from the brutality of the surface gun maneuver As the submarine shot through the surface of the water confined sailors scrambled through the hatches armed with large caliber guns and met the enemy face to face Surface and Destroy The Submarine Gun War in the Pacific reveals the nature of submarine warfare in the Pacific Ocean during World War II and investigates the challenges of facing the enemy on the surface The surface battle amplified the realities of war bringing submariners into close contact with survivors and potential prisoners of war As Japan s larger ships disappeared from the Pacific theater American submarines turned their attention to smaller craft such as patrol boats schooners sampans and junks Some officers refused to attack enemy vessels of questionable value while others attacked reluctantly and tried to minimize casualties Michael Sturma focuses on the submariners reactions and attitudes toward their victims exploring the sailors personal standards of morality and their ability to wage total war Surface and Destroy is a thorough analysis of the submariner experience and the effects of surface attacks on the war in the Pacific offering a compelling study of the battles that became intolerably personal
