The Influences of Social Capital on Lifelong Learning Among Adults Who Did Not Finish High School. NCSALL Occasional Paper Clare L. Strawn, 2003 This study of social capital employs data from the Longitudinal Study of Adult Learning LSAL funded by the National Center for the Study of Adult Learning and Literacy NCSALL and conducted at Portland State University to increase understanding of the learning process of adults with limited formal education It provides longitudinal data on how people continue learning in multiple contexts through formal adult education programs and in their daily lives This paper is presented in two sections The first is a theoretical exploration of the intersections of critical literacy adult learning and social capital theories The intent of this discussion is to introduce key concepts from multiple disciplines and develop a synthetic model of social capital influences on lifelong learning SCILL in which adults construct their social environment and the discourses that influence their learning strategies The second section empirically tests a piece of the SCILL Model related to the structural and discursive dimensions of social capital using data from the first wave of the LSAL Multiple measures of social capital are detailed The author argues that in addition to the structural dimension of social capital local discourse generated through interaction is an interpretive dimension of social capital The discussion ties the empirical and theoretical elements offering implications for the study of adult education participation in adult education for research on social capital Appendices include 1 Longitudinal Study of Adult Literacy Study Design 2 Instrument Items from LSAL Wave 1 3 Confirmatory Factor Analysis of Lifelong Learning 4 Tables of

Lifelong Learning, Intergenerational Learning, and Social Capital Ann Kristin Boström, 2003

Do Acquaintances and Friends Make Us Learn? Social Capital and Lifelong Learning in Germany Anna-Elisabeth Thum, Miroslav Bablavy, 2014 This paper examines the relationship between social capital and adult learning We test this association empirically using measures of various types of social capital and adult learning based on the German Socioeconomic Panel We use predetermined measures of social capital to exclude social skills or friends encountered during the adult education class Fixed effects for latent underlying factors such as deep personality traits and instrumental variables account for changing personality traits We find that most of our social capital measures have a significant and positive impact on the probabilities for investing in various types of adult learning The size of the effect varies across the different measures between increasing the probability of participating in adult learning by 0.04% to increasing the probability by 17% We find evidence that acquaintances are more likely to increase participation in adult learning than friends

Social Capital, 2001 In her recent contribution to the British Educational Research Journal Pauline McClenaghan identified a core area of analytical debate the link between social capital and community development particularly community development education which is an important area where scholarly and policy interests overlap She concludes that the concept of social capital is unable to grapple with the complex social divisions that characterise contemporary Europe The authors question her account on three main grounds the definition of social capital which they hold is overly narrow and does not deal with what Woolcock calls the linking role of social networks the presentation of the theoretical foundations of community development they believe is flawed in certain key respects and a lack of clarity in the relationship between the research and the findings reported The authors then present their own account of social capital as a means of understanding the role of community development the challenges that it can face and the role of adult education for community development Author abstract ed Human Capital, Social Capital and Lifelong Learning ,2003 Social Capital ,2001 In her recent contribution to the British Educational Research Journal Pauline McClenaghan identified a core area of analytical debate the link between social capital and community development particularly community development education which is an important area where scholarly and policy interests overlap She concludes that the concept of social capital is unable to grapple with the complex social divisions that characterise contemporary Europe The authors question her account on three main grounds the definition of social capital which they hold is overly narrow and does not deal with what Woolcock calls the linking role of social networks the presentation of the theoretical foundations of community development they believe is flawed in certain key respects and a lack of clarity in the relationship between the research and the findings reported The authors then present their own account of social capital as a means of understanding the role of community development the challenges that it can face and the role of adult education for community development Author abstract ed Learning Communities and Imagined Social Capital Jocey Quinn,2010-06-03 Using theory drawn from education feminist theory cultural studies and human geography this work explores the related issues of belonging learning and community Special Issue: Human Capital, Social Capital and Lifelong Learning ,2003 The Oxford Handbook of Lifelong Learning Manuel London,2011-03-11 One of the Best Books of 2011 from the Center for Optimal Adult Development Amid fluctuations in today s job markets and economies the importance of learning across the lifespan has become a point of emphasis for governments and employers throughout the world The Oxford Handbook of Lifelong Learning is a comprehensive and interdisciplinary examination of the theory and practice of lifelong learning encompassing perspectives from human resources development adult learning psychology career and vocational learning management and executive development cultural anthropology the humanities and gerontology Individual chapters address the most relevant topics on the subject including continuous learning as it relates to technological economic and organizational changes developmental theories and research models of lifelong learning and the neurological bases for learning across the lifespan examples of learning programs tools and technologies with a focus on corporate programs and business education international perspectives on lifelong learning and learning across cultures assessment of learning needs and outcomes This comprehensive and forward thinking handbook is an important resource both personal and professional for students scholars and for practitioners in the fields of training and development human resource management continuing education instructional technology professional development and organizational psychology Human-Technology Interaction Elena Malakhatchka,Mikael Wiberg,2025-04-08 Delves into the evolving landscape of human technology interaction HTI encompassing various facets from design and implementation to

CONCEPTUALISING CHALLENGES AND NEGOTIATIONS FOR WOMEN IN HIGHER EDUCATION 1 2 3 Pamela Cotterill

Sue Jackson and Gayle Letherby 1 2 3 Staffordshire University Birbeck University of London University of Plymouth

INTRODUCTION Despite the historical tradition of academia as a male space Evans 1995 Abbott et al 2005 Stanley 1997

Letherby 2003 it is possible to argue that the expansion of higher education in the 1980s and 1990s benefited women more than it did men By 1995 there were two and a half times more women in the academy than in 1970 1 Abbott et al 2005 and in the decade to follow the numbers of women undergraduate students had overtaken men with a substantial minority of these being older non standard entrants Furthermore as Paula J Caplan 1997 3 argues Visions of the academic life draw us women toward it picturing an intellectual community whose members search with passion and integrity for Truth and Knowledge We imagine that in academia we shall find freedom from bias freedom from worldly struggles of power and wealth freedom to choose what to study and what to say and an environment characterized by tolerance and openness where everyone s energy is focused on the open exploration of ideas However whilst this may be the vision for some women it is important not to view this widening of female participation in higher education through rose tinted glasses Research Handbook on Adult

Education Policy Marcella Milana,Palle Rasmussen,Margherita Bussi,2024-06-05 Bringing together an impressive array of esteemed and emerging academics the Research Handbook on Adult Education Policy addresses how adult learning and education policies are made and the theories and methodologies which can be mobilised to study its developments

Presenting and Representing Environments Graham Humphrys,Michael Williams,2006-01-27 The presentation and representation of the environment occurs throughout academia and across all news media The strict protocols of science often clash with environmental information available from sources that dwell on subjective aesthetic emotional and personal sensitivities This book challenge the reader as student teacher researcher or policy maker to reflect critically on the ways that environments are studied interpreted presented and represented in education and public policy Concise Ict
