That Singing Mesh:

In the Meshes Christine McKenzie, 1878 I Belong to This Band, Hallelujah! Laura Clawson, 2011-06-01 The Sacred Harp choral singing tradition originated in the American South in the mid nineteenth century spread widely across the country and continues to thrive today Sacred Harp isn't performed but participated in ideally in large gatherings where as the a cappella singers face each other around a hollow square the massed voices take on a moving and almost physical power I Belong to This Band Hallelujah is a vivid portrait of several Sacred Harp groups and an insightful exploration of how they manage to maintain a sense of community despite their members often profound differences Laura Clawson's research took her to Alabama and Georgia to Chicago and Minneapolis and to Hollywood for a Sacred Harp performance at the Academy Awards a potent symbol of the conflicting forces at play in the twenty first century incarnation of this old genre Clawson finds that in order for Sacred Harp singers to maintain the bond forged by their love of music they must grapple with a host of difficult issues including how to maintain the authenticity of their tradition and how to carefully negotiate the tensions created by their disparate cultural religious and political beliefs Meshes of the Afternoon John David Rhodes, 2020-05-14 Meshes of the Afternoon 1943 filmed by Maya Deren and her then husband Alexander Hammid in their bungalow above Sunset Boulevard for a mere 274 90 is the most important film in the history of American avant garde cinema The artistic collaboration between Deren and Hammid finds its distorted reflection in the vision of the film's tormented female protagonist Its focus through a series of intricate and interlocking dream sequences on female experience and the domestic sphere links Meshes to the Hollywood melodramas of the period while its unsettling atmosphere of dread death and doubles makes it a counter cinematic cousin to film noir The film has influenced not only the subsequent history of experimental film but also on the work of Hollywood auteurs It is a touchstone of women's film making of modern cinema and of modern art John David Rhodes traces the film's history back into the lives of Maya Deren and Alexander Hammid but in particular that of Deren He reads the film as a culmination of Deren's abiding interest in modernism and her intense engagement in socialist politics Rhodes argues that while the film remains a powerful point of reference for feminist film makers and experimentalists it is also an example of political art in the broadest terms In his foreword to this new edition Rhodes reflects upon the film's continuing importance for and influence upon feminist and avant garde filmmaking Out of the meshes Meshes, 1868 MultiMedia Modeling Laurent Amsaleg, Gylfi Þór Guðmundsson, Cathal Gurrin, Björn Þór Jónsson, Shin'ichi Satoh, 2016-12-30 The two volume set LNCS 10132 and 10133 constitutes the thoroughly refereed proceedings of the 23rd International Conference on Multimedia Modeling MMM 2017 held in Reykjavik Iceland in January 2017 Of the 149 full papers submitted 36 were selected for oral presentation and 33 for poster presentation of the 34 special session papers submitted 24 were selected for oral presentation and 2 for poster presentation in addition 5 demonstrations were accepted from 8 submissions and all 7 submissions to VBS 2017 All papers presented were carefully reviewed and
