American Revolution James Triplett, 2009-02-01 The world of literature surrounding the notion of leadership may be characterized as a sea of potential explanations littered with the debris of academic and professional models both empirical and conjecture that may have been useful for a given point in time or situation One is left wondering whether there is one defining view of leadership that may at least come close to being considered universal The result of this wondering is a view on leadership that may or may not end up like the debris floating on the sea of possibilities previously mentioned All of this is framed within the context of pre and post Revolutionary War America The efficacy of the result is up to the reader to discern

Bedeian, 2018-04-17 First published in 1996 This volume compiles the autobiographies of the management discipline's most distinguished laureates Prior to this publication the available management literature provided little insight into the personal and intellectual lives the frustrations as well as the triumphs of the individuals in the management discipline Although such understanding could be conveyed in many forms perhaps the most intimate and fascinating of these for gaining behind the scenes insights is the autobiography. Thus the autobiographies in this volume as in the five companion volumes offer the reader not only a glimpse of the subjective determinants and personal experiences of the management discipline's most distinguished laureates but also a deeper understanding of what management is and what it is becoming. The various accounts reflect a diversity of approaches, interests and experiences.

Followership Development and Enactment among the Acholi of Uganda David Wesley Ofumbi, 2019-07-25 The industrial era organizations used dualistic leadership theory which regarded followers as objects of leaders' influence to socialize them into passive followership irrespective of context and outcome. Consequently, organizations focused on leadership and condemned active followership as a toxic behavior that sabotages organizational processes and outcomes. However, the emergence of relational leadership theory in the information era flattened organizational structure which created a greater need for collaboration within and across sectors. In this new era, organizations cannot survive without responsible individuals who could be productive as both leaders and followers. As a result, organizations are experiencing high demand for active followership throughout organizational ranks, roles and relationships. Nonetheless, since followership studies are still in their infancy, there is hardly any information on how followers develop and enact active followership. Whereas some studies established followership identity, role and behaviors and identified factors influencing their development, none has explored how they do so. This study offers a theory of followership development and enactment anchored in a seamless paradigm that can be used to expand leadership theory beyond dualistic tendencies that absolutized the differences among leadership variables despite their seamlessness. Therefore, it enhances organizational desire and capacity to develop and engage star followers effectively.

How Participatory Evaluation Research Affects the Management Control Process of a Multinational Nonprofit Organization Gail J. Fuhs, 2017-02-03 This title, first published in 1993, addresses two questions: can evaluation research function as a surrogate market in non-profit organisations to measure value and assess the goods and services they provide? And second, can the findings from an evaluation process be incorporated as a service accomplishment element into the accounting information published by non-profit organisations?
